Council clears up money issue at P.A. High School

Fund transfer discussed

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Princess Anne High School is not being shortchanged, a school administrator told city council Monday evening, but is actually getting more in the way of renovation than was originally envisioned.

E. Carlton Bowyer, assistant superintendent, said that the work far exceeds the work called for in the original study.

His remarks were expressed toward the end of a seven-hour council meeting Monday through which several students and school patrons of the school had waited to speak. The Princess Anne school community had bombarded individual council members with phone calls over the past two weeks to protest the transfer of $1.3 million from the Princess Anne renovation project to the new Salem High School. Their contention was that all the $7 million provided by the 1985 referendum should be spent on the school.

Bowyer said that the work at Princess Anne, the oldest high school in the city, is expected to be completed on Oct. 31.

Two weeks ago City Council approved the transfer of $1.3 million of the funds to the Salem High School project at the request of the School Board. Bids on the Princess Anne High School project were below estimates, creating the surplus in funds, while the cost of the Salem High School was above estimates. The transfer of the excess funds from Princess Anne was proposed by the School Board as a way to meet

Council moves on development of historic Ferry Farm House

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Even with the imposition of 13 conditions, four city council members withheld their support of a plan for the Old Donation Farm Partnership for the development of 32.8 acres on the Lynnhaven River.

By a vote of 7-4, council Monday afternoon approved three variances and two conditional use permits which will allow the developer to use open space promotion in the development of the 39-lot subdivision. The property, which is zoned R-3 Residential, could have been developed into 39 lots by the conventional subdivision process.

The plan had been opposed by area residents for reasons that had to do with access, safety, traffic, open space areas, and the archeological and historical value of the site.

One of the main considerations was the fate of the historic Ferry Farm House. The conditions require that the developer establish a long-term use and maintenance plan for the house, that the house and 15 feet surrounding it be deeded to the Virginia Beach Art Center, that the deed stipulate that the house will never be torn down or used as a dwelling, that the walkway leading to the house be considered a public walkway, that the parking spaces be constructed to accommodate visitors to the house, and that the $100,000 which the developer offered for repairs to the house be made available prior to the sale of the lots.

Retaining some areas for archeological digs or delaying construction until digs were completed were not addressed by the conditions. Some council members and area residents had requested some consideration be given to the archeological digs.

Other conditions include:

• Accommodations be made for the handicapped for use of the house.

• Fences, if any, in the side grass swales will be placed a minimum of three feet from the center line of the swale.

• A 22-foot pavement be constructed on Cheswick Lane.

• The private road will be connected to Pembroke Boulevard until it is considered structurally sound by the city staff, and that a footbridge be constructed. The work would be at the developer's cost.

Heischober said that if he would not want to subject the people on Cheswick Lane to all the traffic.

He said, however, that while the people of Virginia Beach have lost something by the decision, some headway for the future may have been made by focusing attention on these types of problems.

McClanahan pointed out that she was not trying to be difficult, but that the giving was not all on the developer's side. She said that it was "to the city's advantage to get all the benefits we can."

She said her concern was trying to save as much of the house and land around it as possible. So many things in the proposal, she said, are nebulous. She said that issues have been represented to the public as one thing and turn out to be another. "It is not the developer who is giving away everything," she is giving.

the conditions must be met before the development begins.

Since Heischober, who had presented the conditions, had left, council decided to wait until next Monday to determine exactly what his intentions were.

A number of the conditions had also been recommended by the Planning Commission.

James Willingham, who had proposed that the entire property be designated as a historic and cultural district, said afterward that the city council "could have been more courageous" by having followed this recommendation, but realized that they, the council, was "afraid of court action."

He said, however, that while the people of Virginia Beach have lost something by the decision, some headway for the future may have been made by focusing attention on these types of problems.

Help wanted: Beach police twice as many positions as applicants

Less than one in 10 will wear the badge

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

Sometimes you can have too much of a good thing. That's the case at the Virginia Beach Police Department.

In March it gained city council's approval for the funding of 50 new law enforcement positions. Now the department is having trouble finding people to fill them.

"We are getting applicants," said Gayle Koscho, testing and selecting coordinator for the Virginia Beach Department of Personnel. "We have about 250. The problem is we have twice as many openings."

With the police department's normal attrition rate and the new positions, she said, the personnel department expects to fill 60 to 70 vacancies. Because only one out of every 10 applicants makes it through the hiring process, the 250 applications they now have may only fill half of the positions.

Koscho, the city's personnel department's search to fill the positions has included advertisements across the state and into North Carolina. "We've been taking applications for the police recruit position since March," she said. The personnel office takes applications from police officers already certified in the state of Virginia year-round.

Koscho said the personnel department was hoping to have more applicants at this point because the process can take a while to complete. She said that 132 of the approximately 250 applicants have taken the written test, but "they still have the agility test, a background in-

Cop on the run: Beach police officer going the extra mile in relay for Special Olympics

By James D. Barr

Criminals on the run better hope that Virginia Beach Police Officer Dana Johnson doesn't get in a foot race with them. Most likely, they won't get away.

Johnson, a 6'3", 200-pound member of the police department's Special Patrol, Operation and Tactic Division, is used to running and likes it. He competed in the 1978 New York City Marathon; the Neptune Festival's last four Sandman Triathalons; and he's now training for the Law Enforcement "Torch Run" to benefit Special Olympics.

The benefit race begins Thursday at 6 a.m. at 17th Street and the oceanfront. That morning, he and 14 other members of the Virginia Beach Police Department will run the first 12-mile leg of a two-day race to Richmond.

Johnson says he will never forget a scene from last year's Torch Run. When the last runner was entering the stadium, hundreds of handicapped children lined the route cheering them on. Once the runner passed, a large group of them then followed the runner in.

Other law enforcement officers from police departments along route to Richmond will assist officers from this area in carrying the "Flame of Hope" to a stadium in Richmond's Robins Center where the 1987 Special Olympics will be held.

Last year, 112 Virginia Beach law enforcement officers each ran one mile to cover the 12 miles from the oceanfront to the Norfolk city line. "This year," said Detective Mike Derwent, who is coordinating the runners from Virginia Beach, "we're going to run as a group and alternate carrying the torch."

Once they pass that torch to the Norfolk police officers, most of the Virginia Beach officers will head for home having completed their task. But Johnson has committed himself to follow the course all the way to Richmond, carrying the torch wherever there isn't someone else to fill in.

"I'm planning on running at least 25 miles," said Johnson. That might be a good workout over two consecutive days for some people. For Johnson, it will just be a change of pace.

Though it takes some effort to free up the time in his already hectic schedule, Johnson said he tries to work out an average of two hours each day so he can get in 35 miles of running, 50 miles of biking and three miles of swimming, each week.

"Right now," he said, "I'm doing a 245/10K workout program." He said by starting out with 70 pushups, and then alternating running one mile at 6½ to 7 minute clip and doing 35 pushups, at the end of the workout he completes 245 pushups and runs 10 kilometers.

Another usual routine, he said, is to bicycle from his home in Green Run to Sandbridge, which is 14 miles, take a one mile swim, regardless of the surf, and bike back home. When he runs, he carries in his hands four-pound weights.

One of his tougher workouts entails running up and then walking down Mt. Trashmore 20 times in a row. "Once or twice isn't all that hard," he said, "but not too many people could do a lot more without being exhausted," he said.

While he gains satisfaction from competing in the triathalons, he says taking part in the Torch Run is something special.

His motto, he said, is to run "for those who can't."

Johnson said when he is tired and too tired to go on, he sometimes thinks he should just call his wife and have her pick him up. It's then, he said, he has an internal pep-talk.

He reminds himself that he is running in the Torch Run for thousands of kids who are handicapped but who attempt to do things despite the odds.

Johnson says, he will never forget a scene from last year's

LeSesne announces candidacy for Senate

Saying that his only master will be the citizens of Virginia Beach, Rae H. LeSesne recently announced he plans to run as an independent candidate for the office of state senator in the 7th senatorial district.

"It is my firm belief that I can and will serve the people of Virginia Beach better than any other candidate for I have only one interest," said LeSesne in his announcement. That interest, he said, would be to better the life of the people of Virginia Beach. LeSesne may be the only opponent to encumbent Democratic Senator Clarence A. Holland. Though this is LeSesne's first effort to run for public office, his past political experience includes his leadership in defeating a bond referendum in 1985, speaking on behalf of the Council of Civic Organizations and his backing of the Team for Responsible Leadership during last year's city council campaign.

Hurricane preparedness

June ushers in the hurricane season and Virginia Beach residents are well acquainted with what that means. With devastating power, hurricanes can cause havoc even if they are "near misses."

On June 3, in preparation for the 6-month long hurricane season, the city of Virginia Beach conducted a four-hour "emergency operations drill." The drill, named CHEX-87, for Coastal Hurricane Exercise, is sponsored in conjunction with the State Department of Emergency Services, the U.S. Navy, and the jurisdictions of Norfolk, Newport News, Hampton, Chesapeake and Portsmouth.

According to Lee Eskey, emergency services coordinator for the city of Virginia Beach, approximately 35 Virginia Beach employees, primarily department heads and assistants, will take part in CHEX-87 to review or become familiar with emergency procedure. Wanting to be fully prepared in the event of an actual city-wide emergency, these supervisory people conducted a "table top" exercise, simulating what would take place if a hurricane should approach the city.

Most emergency conditions were presented and those participating learned how to respond to the hypothetical situations, how to respond to citizen's questions and how to disseminate information to the media.

The Office of Emergency Services, responsible for ensuring that an acceptable emergency preparedness and response capability is maintained by the city in the event of a disaster, began this hurricane awareness program in 1985 and hopes to conduct future programs annually.

The Office of Emergency Services, responsible for ensuring that an acceptable emergency preparedness and response capability is maintained by the city in the event of a disaster, began this hurricane awareness program in 1985 and hopes to conduct future programs annually.

These annual drills help city personnel operate more efficiently as a team — essential to dealing with the stressful situations a disaster can create.

In the months ahead, should the Office of Emergency Operations be called into action, Virginia Beach citizens can be sure that the city is prepared to deal with whatever comes. — J.D.B.

Police are high priority

As Virginia Beach grows, it is incumbent upon the city to meet the needs of its citizens. One of the most important needs of the city is to provide adequate protection of its citizens through the police department.

The recent move by city council to increase the number of personnel in the city's police department was a wise move. While arguments might be made for funding other city programs, building up the city's law enforcement capabilities is important to the rest of the city's smooth operation as it grows.

With the city expanding so rapidly, the police department must have the manpower numbers to cover the area; not only with men just in the street, but such population growth also entails having the necessary support staff. Even when things are quiet, having police presence on the streets can be the deterrent which keeps things quiet.

Having an adequate number of policemen on the force is also helpful because the department workload is spread out among more people. The policeman's job is hard enough without having to work overtime to make sure special events are covered adequately.

To develop other city programs and departments beyond the abilities of the police department to insure protection and safety is to invite disaster. The city cannot allow itself to become bigger than what it can protect.

Because the city has shown the foresight to increase the police force, the citizens of Virginia Beach can rest a bit more peacefully knowing that the necessary precautions have been taken to provide for their protection. — J.D.B.

THE ISLIP BARGE GETS NEW ORDERS:

Many happy returns!

In this day and age of jet propulsion where we can land men on the moon and circumnavigate the globe, I am still amazed at how aborigines in Australia created the boomerang.

I am bewildered by the fact that without the help of wind tunnels, aerodynamic research centers and space-age technology, these stone-age hunters developed so simple and yet so complex an hunting tool.

If you have ever thrown one and watched it fly back you'll probably agree that boomerangs are one of life's simple wonders.

For Frisbee lovers, the boomerang is similar. With a swing of the arm and a flip of the wrist, a Frisbee floats through the air, dancing with the wind to another person.

The only difference with a boomerang is you only need one person. With good wind conditions, an open field, and a little practice, a boomerang can bring hours of challenge.

For Frisbee lovers, the boomerang is similar. With a swing of the arm and a flip of the wrist, a Frisbee floats through the air, dancing with the wind to another person.

My interest in boomerangs started when I was 10-years-old. Someone from Australia stayed at our home and gave us an authentic boomerang as a gift. Though I was too young to throw it well I remember watching it glide through the air and finally circle back to the thrower.

Since then, my fascination with boomerangs has never stopped. Never a fanatic or anything, I have just always marvelled at their simplicity.

Then, after long years later, my wife surprised me with a boomerang of my own for our anniversary. That may sound like a weird gift, but think about it. Different, simple and entertaining. For the man who as everything, it's a good bet he doesn't have a boomerang.

The first nice day after I got the gift I went out in the nearest field testing my skill. I will admit I had to chase the first 10 or 12 throws. There isn't anything magic about it, when you throw it correctly, it comes back, if you don't, you chase it.

One important thing I learned about boomerangs — don't try to catch one. Frisbees are made of soft plastic and have round edges. Boomerangs are hard, and sharp. You only have to try to catch a boomerang once, after the feeling comes back to your fingers you figure out it might be best to let it land on the ground then pick it up.

Right now my boomerang is little used. Not because I don't want to use it but in this urban area there are few open places to throw it safely.

But I'm keeping my eyes open. When I see a park or field, I make mental calculations on whether it is a suitable place to play my hobby.

So next time you are in an open area — heads up!

Applications available

Applications are now available for the 1987 Neptune Festival Art and Craft Show. Previously a juried, competitive fine art show and a separate non-juried art and craft show, this year's show is a completely non-juried exhibition and sale of original work with space available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

All artists and craftsmen are encouraged to apply and are eligible for the $2,000 in cash prizes. This new format provides an excellent opportunity for new artists to exhibit.

The Neptune Festival Art and Craft Show is held in conjunction with the 14th Annual Neptune Festival which is held throughout the city of Virginia Beach. The scheduled dates for the Art and Craft Show are Friday, September 24 through Sunday, September 27.

The artists and craftsmen will be exhibiting along the boardwalk on the oceanfront from 18th to 23rd streets. The fee is $65 per space.

Summer workshops

During the summer season, the Virginia Beach Arts Center will offer 15 multimedia workshops, ranging from one to five days in its Arctic Avenue studios, and featuring new topics for all levels of students.

Three eight-week courses — calligraphy, porcelain, and a historical slide/lecture series on Mediterranean art and culture — will also be available.

In addition to a full range of fine craft and customary studio instruction by our most popular instructors, several new workshops are available. These included: "So You Haven't Touched Your Camera Since Last Summer," "The Art of Handcoloring Photographs," "Traditional Splanning," "Clowning for Adults," "Watercolor," "Stained Glass Boxes," and "Introduction to Videotape." Workshop costs range from $23 to $45.

A new registration procedure will use four staggered deadlines: June 16, July 1, 13, and 27. A detailed class brochure with course listings, deadlines and costs is available now at the Virginia Beach Arts Center, 1711 Arctic Avenue.

ArtCamp for kids

The Virginia Beach Arts Center is sponsoring "ArtCamp," beginning June 22 and continuing for six weeks through August 7. The program — in its sixth season — promotes artistic awareness in children and taps into their creative energies through independent and collaborative projects.

ArtCamp consists of 24-week long courses for children age five to 12. Four different classes are offered each week, including painting, drawing, printmaking, ceramics, multi-media, clowning, mime and video art.

Each class lasts five days and costs $30 per child, with an additional materials fee of $7.

Several weeks will include trips to the Chrysler Museum and the Virginia Marine Science Museum. Class times are 9 to 10:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Dates are June 22-26, July 6-10, July 13-17, July 20-24 and August 3-7.

ArtCamp is open to all children; no previous art training is needed. Registration continues throughout the summer. Detailed brochures are available now at 1711 Arctic Avenue.

Art exhibit at Science Museum

A collection of Boardwalk Art Show "Best-in-Show" winners from past years will be on display at the Virginia Marine Science Museum June 10 through 30.

The Virginia Beach Arts Center is sponsoring the show of paintings, prints, drawings and mixed media in conjunction with their 32nd Annual Boardwalk Art Show, held June 18 through 21.

Before working in the special education program at Fairfield, Connard was a kindergarten aide at Woodstock Elementary School.

Anita Adams said, "she has a super relationship with all the children. Her efforts and support help the children to succeed academically and she gives them the success stories that children need to build their confidence."

VBEA's Teacher Aide of the Year is even known to jog with the children and help them follow diet plans if they are overweight.

Even though Connard's most outstanding contributions center around her students, she is also very active in school and church activities. She has served as Hospitality Representative, PTA Representative, Reading Council Representative, and VBEA Representative.

Her volunteer work includes assisting with daycare buses, cafeteria loan collections, and assisting teachers before and after school. She also continues to take college and in-service courses to grow professionally.

Connard was recognized as the 1987 Teacher Aide of the Year at the Virginia Beach Education Association Representatives' meeting on Wednesday, June 3, at Plaza Junior High School and will be hostess at VBEA's reception for Teacher Aide of the Year Nominees on Wednesday, June 10, at the VBEA office.

"Patricia Connard's accomplishments symbolize the fantastic contributions made by over 400 teacher aides to children in Virginia Beach schools every school day," said VBEA President Rob Jones.

VBEA wishes to announce and salute the nominees who joined Patricia Connard as worthy of Teacher Aide of the Year.

The merchants of Wall Street are watching and waiting for Venice summit

Wall Street

By George T. Stagg

It was Harry Houdini who said "things are never what they seem."

When the month of May began, the Dow Industrial average was at 2286. As we move into the first week of June, the blue chip index sits at 2291. At the Indy 500, this is known as wheel-spinning.

The market has been in a broad trading range for two months now. Half the street feels that it is a base for moving forward and the other half believe it's the top that spells bye-bye to the roaring bull.

The financial markets have been beaten up due to concern about currency and inflation. For the moment, the dollar has come out of free fall and has rallied back.

As for inflation, where's the beef?

Admittedly, oil prices have doubled from the bottom but they aren't going much higher, unless the incident in the Persian Gulf worsens.

The rise in grain price is as flimsy as the next rain cloud over Kansas.

Inflation was less than two percent last year. It may be in excess of four percent this year, but no reason for panic.

On the business front, the fourth quarter GNP rise of 4.4 percent looked spirited enough but unless some consumers start to buy a few Chevys, the number could be half that in the second quarter.

Last week, Japan unveiled a six-trillion yen program to stimulate domestic consumption and reduce its external trade surplus. Reports of this program triggered a rally in the currency and bond markets and could be a preliminary move by Japan to reduce criticism when the Venice summit begins on June 6.

For the time being, Wall Street remains on a pre-summit glide path and some swelling gains may be seen immediately ahead.

As for June, since 1973, the Dow has advanced on ten occasions and lost ground three times. Now, isn't that interesting?

CLASP announces election of officers, business meeting and "50's Dance"

CLASP (Citizens Loving All Special People) recently held its annual meeting, and new officers were chosen for the coming year. They will take office on July 1.

Elected were Harry E. Baird, Jr., president; Brenda McDougald, vice-president; Bonnie Conway, secretary, and Juanita Baird, treasurer.

"50's Dance" for physically and mentally handicapped people will be held Saturday, June 20, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. Location will be at the Bow Creek Recreation Center, 3427 Clubhouse Road.

The dance will be sponsored by the Southeastern Virginia Training Center Parents Group, the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation and CLASP (Citizens Loving All Special People).

Participation is free, refreshments will be served and door prizes will be given. The latest will be played. Parents and guardians are welcome, however, chaperones are present at all times.

Transportation is available through TRT at $5 per roundtrip per individual. CLASP must know by June 1 if transportation is desired. Call Carolyn Wiser at 853-8789 after 7 p.m. weekdays, or anytime weekends.

For further information on any of the above call Harry Baird on 586-3110.

Business meeting
CLASP (Citizens Loving All Special People) will hold its annual meeting Monday, June 15, at 7:30 p.m. Location will be at the home of Harry E. Baird, 3900 Rumford Lane.

All voting members are encouraged to attend. All other interested persons are also invited to attend.

As for me, I don't like onions that much, but that onion soup is so yummy.

I was wondering why so many tourists come here. Now I know why. It's because the soup's on

1st Annual Pizza Delivery Race to benefit Leukemia Society

The First Annual Domino's Pizza Delivery Race to benefit the Leukemia Society of America, will be held on Saturday, June 6 from 12 noon to 3 p.m. in the Virginia Beach Plaza Hotel parking lot. The race involves Domino's Delivery personnel throughout the southside of Hampton Roads competing in a timed obstacle course while balancing pizza boxes.

Proceeds from this event will be presented to the Leukemia Society of America, during their First National Teleevent, "Six Hours for Life," on August 8. The program will be broadcast from 12 noon to 6 p.m. and will be seen locally.

All proceeds from the local teleevent will be contributed to leukemia research at the University of Virginia Medical School.

Once summer vacations arrive, this parade of buses will only be a memory to Virginia Beach school students. Photo by James D. Barr

Langley Correspondent

The race was the Rheem Machine 50-lap, Late Model Stock Care feature. The driver of car number 20 was Chesapeake's Roger Sawyer. The sponsor of Sawyer's car - Rheeem. The date was Sawyer's 21st birthday.

You want to guess who won?

It really couldn't have worked out any other way. It just wouldn't have been fitting. But that's not to say that Chesapeake's Phil Warren didn't try to alter the outcome. The two leaders in the Late Model Point standings made it a two-horse race after the early stages, but Warren just couldn't get by Sawyer who rang up his fifth victory of the year. Warren has four and has yet to finish worse than third in nine starts.

Chip Hudson, of Chesapeake, took third place, followed by Joe Gaita, of Newport News, and Charlie Doyle of Norfolk.

In the Grand Stock division, Buddy Hyatt, of Newport News, who finished third, Mike Townsley, of Portsmouth, was fourth and John Hicks, of Hampton, fifth.

Buddy Malish, of Newport News, extended his Mini-Stock winning streak to three with a victory over Milton Herring, of Newport News. It was also his fourth win of the season. Robert White, of Virginia Beach, placed third, with John Howard, of Newport News, fourth and Terry Craig, of Norfolk, fifth.

The Grand Stocks will have the spotlight next week as they run their annual 100-lap feature. The Late Model will go 50 laps.

again, with the All Americans and Mini-Stocks their regular 20-laps.

	Mini-Stock	Late Model
1. Buddy Malish	182	1. Roger Sawyer	200
2. Milton Herring	168	2. Phil Warren	194
3. Robert White	164	3. Chip Hudson	128
4. David Bristow	150	4. Joe Gaita	108
5. John Howard	136	5. Billy Adkins	107

7. Robert Swanson	114	7. Danny Edwards, Jr.	79
8. Terry Craig	114	8. Tucker Boyd	74
9. Ron George	100	9. Bubba Adams	73
10. Bob Rhei	88	10. John Ramey	52

	All-American	Grand Stock
1. Tommy Hoggard	196	1. Buddy Hyatt	208
2. John Hicks	188	2. Buddy Dozier	184
3. Henry Klich	170	3. Mike Sprinkel	176
4. Mike Townsley	152	4. Tony Steele	168
Robert Dozier	152	5. Mitch Sarvis	164
5. Paul Lubno	150	6. Robert Tollenare	122
7. Kenny Webber	96	7. Joe Salco	110
8. Sonny Townsley	82	8. Hugo Belfiore	84
9. Chuck Terry	80	9. William Pearce	74
10. Jeff Carter	68	10. Danny Baker	66

Buddy Malish last weekend won his third straight mini-stock feature.

Virginia Beach Police Department looking for recruits vestigation, a polygraph test, an oral interview with the police department review board committee and a physical, which usually includes a psychological test.

"It can take two to three months," she said. "The biggest problem is with the length of time in getting information back from the background investigation."

Sgt. Danny Kappers of the police department's public affairs office said once the field of applicants is narrowed by the personnel department, the applicants have to make it through the police department's personnel and training program.

It is the police department which puts them through the physical agility test, the polygraph exam, the background investigation, the interview with the review board and the medical check-up, said Kappers.

"We hope to start our (Police) Academy class on August 17," said Kappers. That class, he said, takes 14 to 16 weeks to complete.

The academy covers material having to do with laws of arrest, arrest procedures, traffic accident investigation and many other things, said Kappers. "We run the gamut," he said.

Also included is firearm work at the police firing range in Creeds.

All of his work takes its toll, said Kappers. He estimated that another 20 percent of the applicants are weeded out during the process. Only one or two drop out for academic reasons, said Kappers, for others, it's the firing range that is difficult.

Upon graduation from the academy, the new officers must still complete a minimum of 160 hours on patrol with a Field Training Officer. "They are assigned to the 1st, 2nd or 3rd Precincts," said Kappers, "and even after their time with the Field Training Officer they can expect a year or two on patrol to get street experience before they expect to be moved to any special position."

For those who are interested, said Koscho, requirements for applicants include: being a high school graduate, being 21-years-old at the time of hiring, height and weight must be proportional, vision must be at least 20/100 corrected to 20/20 and applicants must have a Virginia driver's license or be able to obtain one.

Koscho said that four other requirements must be met. First, the applicant must not have used marijuana within the last 12 months; past use of any hallucinogenic substance is not allowed; any untruthfulness on the application or during the interview is not allowed; and any undetected direct involvement or an incident/accident which make the applicant chargeable with a felony under Virginia State law or crime involving moral turpitude would disqualify the applicant.

Though the department has no quotas, said Koscho, "we would like to see as many minorities and women apply as possible."

the Salem High School expenses.

Major Robert G. Jones saw the controversy as a difference in the perception of how the government functions. He said that when the project was first planned the School Board had specific projects in mind, and that the attitude that "we're going to spend $7 million no matter what" is "no way to run a government."

Torch Run. When the last runner was entering the stadium, hundreds of handicapped children lined the route cheering them on. Once the runner passed, a large group of them then followed the runner in.

"It's really motivating to see something like that," he said. "It's something that's hard to describe unless you've been there."

All Purpose Music changes locations

"All Purpose Music," an entertainment service, has moved from 1102 Five Points Road to 2460 Rose Hall Drive.

Established in 1982 by entertainer Eric Stevens, "All Purpose Music" provides bands, soloists, DJ's, chamber music, strolling musicians, and entertainers of all descriptions for weddings, parties of all types, conventions, exhibitions, grand openings, political rallies, etc.

Ad firm relocates

Barcita, Cortani and Morrisson, the Virginia Beach-based advertising and public relations firm has announced that its offices relocated from the Princess Anne Plaza area to the Reflections building at 2809 S. Lynnhaven Rd.

In addition, the agency has announced its appointment as agency of record for Sheller Globe's Mitchell and Smith Plants and for C & T Properties.

Sheller Globe is a producer of cork materials, including automotive gaskets and industrial seals. C & T Properties is the developer of Kilm Creek Center, a shopping center planned for York County, and of other commercial developments.

Crosby joins ad firm

Virginia Beach resident Kathi Crosby, formerly an account executive with John Baggio & Associates, was named an account executive for Greater Creators, Inc., a commercial advertising firm in Virginia Beach.

Moore than just carrying the torch, the Virginia Beach runners are hoping to raise money for their efforts to help the Special Olympics. The 150-mile run from the Beach to Richmond is part of a nationwide effort by more than 10,000 law enforcement officers to run approximately 25,000 miles in 44 states to benefit children and adults with mental retardation.

Sgt. Danny Kappers, of the Virginia Beach Police Department, who is in charge of coordinating the event for those involved, from South Hampton Roads up to Williamsburg, said that last year's run raised $8,000. This year, he said, they hope to raise $10,000.

funds, and an exemption from installing curbs and gutters.

Cromwell said that the council had three alternatives:

*Declare the property in the eminent domain for a park.

*Approve the application with exceptions.

*Deny the application so that the owners can proceed to develop the property at R-3 to which they have the perfect legal right.

Pungo Strawberry Festival Parade revisited

One of the biggest crowd pleasers was the "O.S.A. Drill Team" from the Fleet Combat Training Center. Precision marching on command was answered by applause wherever they performed along the parade route.

Twins Marybeth and Christina Miller, 1 1/2, were part of the parade, pulled in a wagon by their mother in the "Mothers of Twins" entry.

The parade would not be complete if it wasn't for the miniature car unit from the Khedive Temple in Norfolk.

The Kellam High School Marching Band and Flag Corps was one of many band units that took part in Saturday's activities.

State Boards reprimand two from Beach

A Virginia Beach veterinarian has been reprimanded by the Virginia Board of Veterinary Medicine for not keeping accurate records of controlled drugs.

The charges against Dr. Mark H. Honaker, a veterinarian in charge of the Tidewater Veterinary Emergency Center, stemmed from a Sept. 1986 audit by an inspector for the Department of Health Regulatory Boards.

A board spokesman emphasized that the violations were simply a matter of inadequate record-keeping and did not involve any diversion or illegal use of controlled drugs.

Honaker was also fined $250 but payment was stayed on the condition there be no further record-keeping violations for two years.

In another action, the State Board of Nursing placed on one-year probation the registered nursing license of Gale M. Hartley of Virginia Beach, for failure to maintain proper controlled drug records while employed at Virginia Beach General Hospital in March 1986.

A board spokesman said improper record-keeping can have the serious consequences of patients receiving too much medication or not enough.

There was neither a charge nor a finding that Hartley was involved in the unauthorized personal use of controlled drugs.

TCC Community Calendar

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College has announced the following events as part of its community services.

TCC is now accepting applications for its Transition and Academic Enhancement Program for Black Students.

The program, in its third year, is designed for black students who have the potential for success, but who may not always have been successful academically, according to a TCC press release.

The program, supported by a grant by the Virginia Community College System, will begin Sept. 8. Skills and activities stressed will include goal setting and development of actions plans, values clarifications, leadership, decision making, problem solving and career assessments.

New to the program this year will be a "shadowing" experience in which students will accompany successful area people who have agreed to participate as role models.

The students also will be enrolled in the fall in developmental reading, writing and mathematics classes, have a college transition seminar and be given weekly counseling sessions.

To qualify for the program a student must be eligible for financial aid. The individual also must be a resident of Virginia and must arrange for a transcript of his or her high school record to be sent to the counseling office of the TCC campus the individual plans to attend.

Potter honored at Gardner-Webb

Elizabeth A. Potter of Virginia Beach was recently honored for her service to the department of natural sciences at Gardner-Webb College in Bolling Springs, N.C.

Potter, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Potter, was recognized by the faculty for her hard work and dedication in her pursuit of high achievement in biology. She graduated with a bachelor of science degree in biology.

Gardner-Webb College is a liberal arts college affiliated with the North Carolina Baptist State Convention. The college, with an enrollment of approximately 1900 students, offers these degrees: the associate's, the bachelor's, and the master's degrees.

Exchange students need host families

The American Scandinavian Student Exchange is looking for Virginia Beach families willing to house 10 exchange students during the 1987/88 academic year.

The students are fluent in English and have proven to be of exemplary character. All students are covered by comprehensive medical and liability insurance and have adequate spending money for personal needs. The host family provides room and board and a measure of guidance.

For more information about the program, contact the area representative at 340-1597.

Hirt awarded $500 scholarship at MWC

Anne M. Hirt of Virginia Beach, a rising senior at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va., has been awarded the Minnie Rob Phaup Scholarship in Psychology for the 1987-88 academic year. The award carries a stipend of $500.

The Phaup scholarships were

Cooke graduates with honors from Bowdoin

Donald Dickson Cooke, of 223 78th St., was recently awarded a bachelor of arts degree at Bowdoin College's 182nd Commencement Exercises.

He was graduated magna cum laude and Bowdoin President A. LeRoy Greason presented the diploma.

A graduate of Woodberry Forest School, Cooke held a double major in history and Romance languages at Bowdoin and was a dean's list student.

He was named a James Bowdoin Scholar, an award given in recognition of outstanding academic achievement.

As a junior, he studied in Paris, France, through a program sponsored by Sweet Briar College.

Nelson selected for MWC's Alvey scholarship

Amy P. Nelson of Virginia Beach was recently selected as the recipient of the Edward Alvey Jr. Scholarship for the 1987-88 academic year at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Va.

This $500 scholarship was endowed in the name of Dean Emeritus Edward Alvey Jr., who was dean of the college from 1934-67 and professor of education from 1967 until his retirement in 1971.

According to the guidelines set down for the scholarship, the recipient must be enrolled in an approved program leading to certification as a teacher and must have a 3.0 grade point average.

The scholarship is awarded annually to the student most closely established in memory of Minnie Rob Phaup, a former member of the MWC faculty, and are awarded to outstanding rising juniors and seniors in psychology.

Mary Washington College is a four-year, coeducational, state-supported liberal arts college.

He earned junior varsity numerals in tennis and was a three-year letter winner in squash. He was elected co-captain of the squash team for his senior season, and was awarded the 1987 Reid Squash Trophy, awarded annually to the member of the varsity team who has "shown the most improvement."

Cooke wrote for The Bowdoin Orient, the weekly campus newspaper and was a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

Founded in 1794, Bowdoin is a liberal arts college of 1,350 students, 25 miles from Portland, Maine, offering 22 departmental majors and several interdisciplinary programs.

emulating the commitment to education and academic excellence exhibited by Dr. Alvey throughout his career at Mary Washington.

Mary Washington College is a coeducational, state-supported, four-year, liberal arts college.

4 receive degrees

The following Virginia Beach students recently received their A. B. degrees from Sweet Briar College.

Kristen June Kreassig (English major, cum-laude), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Melvin Kreassig; Erin Therese Kingston (international affairs major), daughter of Capt. and Mrs. John J. Kingston; Julia Hamilton Trant (art history major), daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Trant, III; and Mary Carroll Via (French major, cum laude, and a management certificate), who received the L'Alliance Francaise de Lynchburg Award, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Via, Jr.

John Tower, former Republican senator from Texas and more recently chairman of the President's Special Review Board, delivered the commencement address on "National Security in an Open Society."

Lieutenant's bars are pinned to Fred Grant's uniform by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Grant.

Grant commissioned at Longwood College

W. A. "Fred" Grant Jr., a recent Longwood College graduate from Virginia Beach, has been commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.

Grant was commissioned just a few hours after taking part in commencement. He was sworn in and then his lieutenant's bars were pinned to his uniform by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred A. Grant.

Grant, a government major, will be assigned to the military police in the Reserves. He successfully completed the Army ROTC program.

He is a graduate of Princess Anne High School.

Lambert initiated into Phi Kappa Phi

Virginia Beach resident and North Carolina State University graduate Charles T. Lambert was recently initiated into Phi Kappa Phi, the national academic honor society.

Lambert was added to the membership of the honor society as the NCSU chapter of Phi Kappa Phi held its 64th annual banquet and initiation at the University Student Center.

Lambert is president of R. E. Lambert & Son Inc., Virginia Beach general contractors. A 1981 graduate with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering, he has been a member of the NCSU Alumni Association for 26 years.

Lambert also is a past president of the Associated General Contractors of Virginia.

He and his wife, Betty, reside at 655 W. Fox Grove Court.

Pierce completes degree at TCU

Stephen Wayne Pierce of Virginia Beach is among the 775 Texas Christian University students who completed degree requirements and received their diplomas during its spring commencement.

Spring baccalaureate and commencement service, combined into one event, was held in TCU's Daniel-Meyer Coliseum. Presiding was Dr. William E. Tucker, TCU chancellor.

Pierce, who resides at 5241 Balboa Dr., has completed a Bachelor of Science degree in Public Relations Media Emphasis.

The following students have been accepted in the Science, Technology, and Humanities program:

Kellam joins development staff at Virginia Wesleyan College

Sarah F. "Sally" Kellam has been named assistant director of development at Virginia Wesleyan College. She will be working mainly with foundations and research, according to James R. Bergdoll, vice president for college relations and planning.

Kellam comes to Virginia Wesleyan from the Virginia Commission for the Arts in Richmond, where she served as regional coordinator. Her responsibilities there included assisting arts groups and other non-profit organizations in half the state in planning and preparing funding applications and consulting with groups on long-range planning, management, and fund raising.

Before joining the Virginia Commission for the Arts, Kellam was on the staff at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond. Other educational experience includes fellowships and special study at Emory and Henry, the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill (School of Business), and the University of North Carolina-Greensboro.

History from Duke University and a M.A. degree in Museum Education from The College of William and Mary. Other educational experience includes fellowships and special study at Emory and Henry, the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill (School of Business), and the University of North Carolina-Greensboro.

Teague named an alternate for $50,000 scholarship at Davidson

Kempsville High School student Bailey Teague has been named an alternate for the Edward Crossland Stuart Scholarship at Davidson College.

Teague, the son of Reginald and Carole Teague of Achilles Court, is a senior at Kempsville and has been a volunteer at the Pax River Community Center conducting youth activities. He is active in the Methodist Youth Fellowship at Community United Methodist Church.

The Stuart Scholarships are based solely on merit and are worth approximately $50,000 over a four-year period. The Edward Crossland Stuart Scholarship is a private, coeducational liberal arts college located just north of Charlotte, N.C. It is associated with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and is celebrating its 150th year in 1987.

Beach sailing club sets monthly meeting

The Virginia Beach local chapter of the Offshore Club International will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, June 9, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Aidan's Episcopal Church, 3201 Edinburg Drive.

The local club offers sailing enthusiasts, both crew and boat owners, opportunities to learn to sail and to participate in planned regattas and convoys.

A sailing cruise is tentatively planned for the weekend of June 13. Boat owners please call for details and guests are welcome. Call 622-4259 or 340-8975 after 7 p.m. for details.

NARFE to meet June 10; increased dues proposed

Metro Chapter 1601 of the National Association of Retired Federal Employees (NARFE) will hold its next monthly meeting on Wednesday, June 10, at 1:30 p.m. at Suburban Christian Church, 5132 Bellamy Manor Dr.

The executive board informed all members of an increase in the per capita state federation dues. Based on this increase and increased operating expenses, a change in chapter dues is being proposed.

All members are urged to attend the June meeting at which time a vote on the increased dues will take place.

Refreshments will be served and for more information call 420-6226.

African Violet Society to have June 6 display

The Lynnhaven African Violet Society will have a display of African violets on Saturday, June 6, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Francis Land House at 311 Virginia Beach Blvd. There will be a $1 admission charge.

Although small, the club has been active since 1959 and is affiliated with two national organizations — The African Violet Society of America and Saintpaulia International.

The African violet we know today is a product of intensive hybridization. The African violet is now considered America's favorite house plant and the varieties grown are known to number in the thousands.

Fleet Reserve Association set meeting for June 10

Kempville Branch 99, Fleet Reserve Association and Unit 99, Ladies Auxiliary, Fleet Reserve Association, will hold its scheduled monthly meeting on Wednesday, June 10 at 8 p.m. at 206 Jersey Avenue. All members and interested members are encouraged to attend.

Items of interest to be discussed will be the deteriorating medical benefits of the retired, active duty and their families of personnel of the Navy, Marine Corp and Coast Guard. For more information call 499-6650.

Beach Hotel & Motel Assoc. to sponsor oceanfront park 'Beach Bash' fundraiser

A "Beach Bash" to raise funds to purchase the 24th Street Oceanfront Park will be held Thursday, June 4 from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Dome, 19th and Pacific Avenue. The event is being sponsored by the Virginia Beach Hotel and Motel Association.

Come and enjoy beach music featuring Fan Ammons and his band. It is recommended that comfortable beach attire be worn. Beach-type refreshments will be featured.

City Council, recently voted to place a three-month option on this last remaining oceanfront parcel of land, giving the 24th Street Oceanfront Park Committee additional time to raise $600,000. If the committee can raise $600,000 by Sept. 1, the city will purchase the land for a city-owned park for the citizens of Virginia Beach.

The public is invited to attend. Tickets are $10 per person and are tax deductible. Tickets may be purchased at the following locations:

- The Pavilion Convention Center.
- Virginia Beach Hotel & Motel Office - 1112 Laskin Road.

The National Hershey Track and Field Youth Program will hold local competition at the Cox High School Stadium on Friday, June 5, at 4 p.m., with registration beginning at 3:15 p.m.

Young athletes ages 9 to 14 will compete in sprints, runs, relays, the softball throw, and the standing long jump. Last year, 375 participants competed for the opportunity to advance to district, state and national meets.

The program is free and open to all children in Virginia Beach. For more information, contact your physical education specialist or call 495-1892.

Area youth invited to join 4-H Dog Club

The Virginia Beach 4-H invites all youth (ages 9-19) and their dogs to join the 4-H Dog Club. The 4-H Dog Club participates in many activities, ranging from the Pungo Strawberry Festival to the American Kennel Club Dog Shows.

Every six weeks begins a new obedience training class, along with showmanship instruction. All include room for advancement and recognition.

Every third Wednesday of each month the Dog Club holds its business meeting. Anyone is welcome to attend.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. at Bow Creek Recreation Center.

Tow trucks, mopeds draw council's attention

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Summertime and the living is uneasy at the Beach.

Take the mopeds that travel in packs threatening the body and limb of the drivers and everyone in the way.

Then there are some tow truck companies that (Heaven forbid) overcharge the city's coveted tourists, not to mention the fact that some operators don't know how to tow without causing serious damage to the vehicles.

The Council was occupied Monday afternoon with bringing local ordinances involving motor vehicles, and mopeds, into compliance with the State Code when Virginia Beach Borough Councilman Robert E. Fenstress remarked that the State legislators don't understand the special problems at the Beach and that city council should build up better communication channels with the General Assembly.

Looking for stricter legislation, council deferred two ordinances for two weeks to give City Attorney Dale Bimson time to find out how much stricter, under State law, the city can make its ordinances.

One ordinance, which would parallel state legislation, requires moped dealers to affix a permanent sticker or decal stating that Virginia law prohibits operation of mopeds by persons under 16 years of age on highways and public vehicular areas.

Councilwoman Reba McManan said the ordinance also should address rentals.

"These things are dangerous," added Fenstress. "They run in packs. We're going to be faced with a real tragedy... Make it as strict as you can," he advised.

Drivers of mopeds do not need a driver's license because the machines are not considered motor vehicles.

Fenstress said that he could not understand why, because its tires are less than eight inches in diameter, mopeds are not classified as motor vehicles.

It's the size of the brain that counts, remarked Councilman John A. Baum.

Fenstress continued that when a rider falls off a motorcycle going 35 miles and hour and a moped going 35 miles an hour, the result is the same, but the motorcycle rider is required to wear a helmet and the moped driver is not.

The other ordinance involves tow trucks.

City Manager Thomas H. Muehleinbeck reported that the Virginia Beach Police Department has received numerous complaints regarding unethical conduct by several operators of tow truck services who remove vehicles from private property. The police control towing only at public places.

To address the complaints, the ordinance:

• Prohibits the practice of using unmarked tow trucks or trucks displaying false or obsolete addresses or phone numbers.

• Ensures that the tow truck operator provides information to the police dispatcher sufficient to enable locating and recovering a towed vehicle.

• Requires the towing service operator to retain receipts for a year and to produce them on demand. In the past, operators have claimed inability to produce records when demanded.

• Requires that cars are stored in lighted locations less susceptible to theft and vandalism.

• Requires the operator to provide a lighted area for inspection of a vehicle when it is reclaimed at night. Unskilled or careless tow truck operators may damage vehicles during the towing process and vehicles are occasionally vandalized while in storage.

Owners have complained that they did not notice damage to vehicles reclaimed at night. Owners have complained that they did not notice damage to vehicles reclaimed at night.

$44.2 million in water, sewer projects discussed by council

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

The city staff has recommended an expansion of the neighborhood water and sewer program which would cost as much as $44.2 million and would take 15 to 17 years to complete.

The program proposed by Public Utilities Director Clarence Warnstaff at a workshop Monday afternoon involves 35 water projects and 27 sewer projects. A principal component of the plan is to provide sewer service concurrently with water projects for economy of design and construction and for convenience of residents.

Also recommended is the ultimate purchase of the two remaining privately-owned water utilities, Riverlake Water Agency and Indian River Road Company.

The 35 water projects alone, Warnstaff said, would increase the Public Utilities Capital Improvement Program by approximately one-third.

Following the drought of 1986 when wells were going dry, property owners in 52 neighborhoods petitioned the city for water services. A valid petition requires the signatures of 51 percent or more of the property owners.

Last Sept. 8 Council authorized 17 of the projects and provided $6.6 million for them in the 1986-91 Capital Improvement

$7.7 M central library: Job applications coming in from as far away as Ohio, Florida

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

The builders say they are working with a tight schedule, but if everything keeps going at the present pace, Virginia Beach's new $7,769,000 central library building should be completed this December.

"There are a number of things affecting the tentative opening date," said Martha J. Sims, director of Virginia Beach's Department of Public Libraries, but when the new facility, now under construction on Virginia Beach Boulevard near Thalia, is completed, it will be a shining jewel in the city's library system.

Sims said the existing five public branch libraries are too small to appropriately house all the libraries' services. The new facility, which will offer 150,000 selections, including books, videos and compact discs, will allow the system to "catch up" with the space requirements, she said.

"To some extent," said Carolyn Barkley, head librarian at the new 95,000-square-foot facility, the central library may take some of the burden off the

When the doors open, the facility will have 105,000 new books, 8,000 reference books moved from the Reference Division at Bayside, and close to 40,000 microfilms, videos and compact discs — a total of 150,000 selections available.

over-used area facilities, but, she said, "each area library has its own clientele which will continue to go there."

The two area libraries which will be most affected by the central library are the Great Neck and Bayside branches, Barkley said.

Both Great Neck, which now houses the support services for the city's library system, and Bayside, which is where the library system's general reference bureau is located, will gain the extra space when both of those library divisions are moved to the central library.

Barkley said the large size of the central library is definitely a plus for those who use it. Instead of having similar services being crowded together as they are at the branch libraries, she said, the new library will separate services, making it easier to get the needed information.

"We hope by separating the functions we can provide better service," she said.

Barkley said since she was hired as central librarian last November, she has been primarily involved in hiring staff and working on the interior design of the building. She said one of the building's strengths is it "was planned with the user's ease in mind."

As example of this, she said, are the new library's two meeting rooms and the 250-seat auditorium. She said survey results from the area round the library showed there were a number of large auditoriums located in schools, but there was a need for something smaller, for medium-sized groups.

Other features for public use, said Sims, will be the new video and compact disc collection of educational and instructional

Stallings announces candidacy

Virginia Beach resident Moody E. "Sonny" Stallings, Jr., a democrat, has announced that he will seek the 8th District state senatorial seat now occupied by Joe Canada, republican. Stallings, who had no previous political experience, vowed to wage a clean, energetic campaign.

Citing the condition of the city's road system, environmental and educational concerns, Stallings stated that Virginia Beach was facing a "critical crossover" in its history. Stallings also emphasized his belief that public officials ought to be role models and set an example of integrity, thereby instilling pride in our community.

Stallings, a 39-year-old attorney, is a partner in the Virginia Beach law firm of Stallings and Richardson. He is married to Joan S. Stallings, they have two daughters, Kelly and Maggie, and live in the Bay Colony section of the city.

Expressway concerns

Our elected officials on city council are always in the spotlight when they make a decision. The nature of political decision making is, no matter what is decided, someone isn't going to like it.

But of all the issues city council has faced in the past, none looks as multifaceted and difficult to handle as the upcoming decisions regarding the proposed Southeastern Expressway.

Confusion over the route it will take through the southeastern section of the city leaves the council in a difficult position, hesitant to make any firm decision about land zoning in the possible construction paths. Council members are wedged between a rock and a hard place and they are starting to feel the squeeze. But the decisions they make now are just as important as those in the future. Each decision will either cloud or clarify the issue.

What makes the Southeastern Expressway issue even more difficult is it includes all the "hot potato" issues council has had to deal with tied into one big package.

The city's growth/no growth issue along with the "Green Line" has pushed much development in the northern half of Virginia Beach. The traffic created by the rapid urbanization is now becoming a burden on the road system, making the expressway more important.

Confusion over the route it will take through the southeastern section of the city leaves the council in a difficult position, hesitant to make any firm decision about land zoning in the possible construction paths. Council members are wedged between a rock and a hard place and they are starting to feel the squeeze. But the decisions they make now are just as important as those in the future. Each decision will either cloud or clarify the issue.

City council also recognized the importance of the tourist industry to the health of the local economy. If the Southeastern Expressway would help those who commute to the city, that would be nice. That it would facilitate the coming and going of tourists to the area, making their travels a little nicer, is even better.

Then there is the project's environmental impact. Some of the hesitation of deciding on the expressway's final route hinges on whether the Army Corps of Engineers will allow it to be built over fragile wetlands. Council has wrestled a long time with balancing growth and environmental issues.

The expressway is a big project. When you are dealing with $200 million, it is wise to go slowly and not make any mistakes. But going slowly must not be confused with avoiding or dodging the issue.

The city council is going to step on someone's toes no matter what it does. — J.D.B.

New library strengthens city

When the new Central Library in Virginia Beach is completed, it will be a big feather in the city's cap. Along with the area's educational institutions, this public library is more than a collection of books — it represents the city's commitment to the intellectual growth and development of its citizens.

In the midst of the questionable use of public funds for various city projects, the nearly $11 million allocated to the creation of this library facility will be well worth the money and be a long run benefit to the city.

The city has suffered too long with an inadequate library system. As the city has grown, the existing small buildings have been bursting at the seams and have needed the new space just to keep pace with the demands of its patrons. The small space also hindered the ability of patrons to obtain information available to them. The library staff has worked hard under the circumstances, but have been hampered by the lack of space.

While the patrons will benefit by the increased research materials and aesthetic surroundings, the library's meeting rooms and 250-seat auditorium will be a benefit to many civic groups and organizations who need facilities for their meetings.

On top of all the new technology integrated into the research facilities, the building itself has been designed with the latest energy efficient features that will make it cost less to run both summer and winter.

The facility should be comfortable to work in and comfortable to the taxpayers' pocketbook. — J.D.B.

Pocono Joe comes alive

You've heard of VFW — Veterans of Foreign War; well, I am a VFW — Veteran of Frightful Summer Camp.

Though my experience is not lengthy, I consider that my time spent in cabins and tents qualifies me as an expert.

Whenever I have shared my summer camp stories with others who have survived the adventures of roughing it, I have found all camps have one thing in common. Every camp apparently has a mysterious murderer or psychopathic killer silently lurking in the hills and forests around the campgrounds.

In my last tour of duty as a counselor at a posh camp located in eastern Pennsylvania, it wasn't long before the stories of "Pocono Joe" started to make their rounds.

Pocono Joe is, I think, very typical of what you would find at any other camp. Others might be known by different names — Hookman Harry, Axman Al, Wildman Willy or Mad Mike — but their stories usually revolve around similar scenarios.

Pocono Joe, the story goes, lived a few miles away from the camp. Though he was poor, he worked hard, was a quiet and gentle man and had a nice son. Then tragedy struck.

Pocono Joe was too poor to send his son to camp but the son, seeing all kids having so much fun, visited the camp one day. No one knows how it happened, but the little boy fell into the lake and drowned.

Pocono Joe never got over the accident, they say, and when his wife died a few years later, Pocono Joe became more and more anti-social. Pocono Joe finally went crazy and was placed in a state asylum for the insane.

That was 10 years ago. Now, news reports on the radio say he escaped.

Now, to effectively use this type of horror story at camp, it must be remembered what the purpose is — to control the otherwise uncontrollable little brats that come to camp. When you work at a camp as a counselor, you are not allowed to punish the kids and they soon learn it.

The only way to have any control is to introduce "Pocono Joe" to them and tell them if they start getting out of line, sneaking out of the cabin or trying to get out of camp activities, they'd better be careful — Pocono Joe is around. The last kid he found was never heard from again.

At the camp where I worked, most of the kids were there for eight weeks. By the fourth or fifth week, all my 10-year-old boys knew that there was little I could do to make them do what I wanted. My only weapon was their fear of the unknown.

Take a cocky ten-year-old who thinks he is hot stuff, and place him in the wilds of nature all alone and it won't be long before he starts imagining creatures of all sorts. I just helped his imagination a little with a story or two of Pocono Joe.

From the fifth week on, all the counselors were in cahoots, creating ways to make Pocono Joe a little more believable. With the right timing, new evidence of Joe's existence in the area and even in the camp itself was rumored. As darkness fell each evening, my cocksure adolescents became putty in my hands knowing that I was their only real security against whatever monster was lurking in the night's shadows.

Finally, Pocono Joe made his appearance. Well, no one actually saw him, but a well orchestrated chase through the camp's cabin area with counselors shouting, "There he is!" and "Catch him!" along with

Special Report

What is happening to our air quality?

The quality of our air has improved significantly since the Clean Air Act was passed more than a decade ago.

However, the country remains plagued by a lethal array of chemical air pollutants — many of which have been largely ignored by federal regulators.

The 1970 Clean Air Act gives the federal government authority to control all airborne toxic chemicals.

According to the National Wildlife Federation's annual Environmental Quality Index, only six out of approximately 2,000 substances have been regulated. The others are spewed largely uncontrollably into the environment.

Studies show that more than 62 million pounds of highly toxic chemicals are released annually into the air from some 300 manufacturing plants in 34 states.

The list includes more than 8 million pounds of methylene chloride and some 3 million pounds of benzene and butadiene. All are known or suspected cancer-causing substances.

Acid rain, too, remains a serious problem in many parts of the country. Although the Reagan administration announced last year that action on acid rain is necessary, the levels of the pollutants that cause it — sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides — continue to edge upward.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, the amount of these pollutants in the air increased 2 percent each in 1984 over the previous year. The sulfur and nitrogen emissions are especially caused by automobile exhaust and industries using coal and other fossil fuel-burning boilers and power plants.

They are known to be hazardous to humans, particularly to individuals with respiratory diseases.

Acid rain is also taking a heavy toll on the environment. New evidence shows that at least 75 percent of the lakes in New Hampshire and Rhode Island and at least 60 percent of those in Massachusetts and Maine will be seriously damaged if acid rainfall continues.

In the upper Midwest region, EPA researchers found that 43 percent of the lakes could become devoid of all life as a result of acid rain.

June tours announced at Wildlife Refuge

The Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge will offer public walking tours on June 6, 14, 19, 20, 26, and 28. All tours will be held during the early to mid-morning hours to avoid the summer heat and to increase the chances of viewing wildlife.

Morning beach walks will be held on Friday, June 19, at 9 a.m. On Sunday, June 14, at blooming plant walk will get underway at 8 a.m. and on Sunday, June 28, another walk entitled "discovering plant uses" will begin at 8 a.m. A habitat walk will be featured on Saturday, June 20, at 8 a.m. and a refuge management hike will get underway at 9 a.m. on Friday, June 26.

The plant walks are led by refuge volunteer, Jan Wright, who utilizes road-sides and trails to find and examine wild-flowers, trees, and other flowering plants.

The habitat walk and refuge management hike take place in or near, dune, marsh, beach, shrub, and bay habitats. The management hike includes discussions of prescribed burning, shorebird protection, water management, and nesting sea turtle management. The habitat walk offers participants and general overview of Refuge habitats, including wildlife populations and food value.

All walks begin from the Visitor Contact Station, located on the Refuge, at 4005 Sandpiper Rd. in Virginia Beach. In addition to walks, film programs are offered each Saturday and Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. in the Visitor Contact Station Auditorium.

Additional information concerning these, and other programs, can be obtained by phoning 804-721-2412.

Reflections on a year gone by/looking to the future

Let's Talk

By Rob Jones
President
Virginia Beach
Education Assoc.

This week's column is being submitted by VBEA Vice-President Claire Polley.

June is a month of 'tions.' All over the city families are making decorations, sending invitations, mailing reservations, and eagerly preparing for graduations.

Individuals are making recommendations, preparing for separations, and mentally making reflections about the year gone by.

Students are delighted that vacations are coming. They want to swim, play, and relax. They need the time to live life at a slower pace without the pressure of anymore assignments.

Teachers also need the time to relax, recharge, and reflect. Many of us will take courses, read and prepare new texts, and explore new ideas to help us be better teachers next fall.

Several of our best comrades will be retiring this June. We wish them Godspeed in their future endeavors and hope their reflections are wonderful ones.

They are:
Bayside High School — Anita A. Thomas, James A. Roth; First Colonial High — Shirley L. Gray, Raymond C. Newman; Kellam High — Norman Wilde; Princess Anne High — Luella D. Jones; Lynnhaven Junior — Richard W. Reeks; Plaza Junior — Edgar Bryant; Center for Effective Learning — Elaine G. Cardinal; Centerville Elementary — Mary B. Edenton; and Cooke Elementary — Patricia R. Holland.

Green Run Elementary — Linda G. Magruder; Malibu Elementary — Margaret S. Barcliff, Ann M. Lyon; Pembroke Elementary — Mabel W. Knight; Pembroke Meadows Elementary — Jean W. Mitchell; Seatack Elementary — Eugenia H. Johnston; Tidewater Elementary — Rowena D. Larsen, Ola H. Parrish; and Career Development Center — Andrew J. Mitchell Jr., Ethel P. Goldman.

These fine teachers have pursued a career of excellence. They pledged themselves to their schools and students.

They also supported the Virginia Beach Education Association and we thank them for helping our organization prosper. As the members of the Virginia Beach Education Association reflect, they can be proud of their successes.

At the national level, the National Education Association (NEA) successfully lobbied for a 9 percent increase in federal funding for education despite cuts proposed in the president's budget.

Mary Hatwood Futrell, president of NEA, has effectively represented us on the Carnegie Commission and across the nation speaking to groups about the educational reform movement. Her efforts will truly raise the quality of teaching in the years to come.

The Virginia Education Association can be proud of its impact on Virginia's law makers. The Virginia teachers average increase in salary was second highest out of the fifty states. Teachers have a better retirement option and a larger voice in the decision-making process.

Locally, the Virginia Beach

Education Association has worked for an equal raise for those teachers at the top of the pay scale, funded sabbatical leave, and helped secure air-conditioning for all of the schools. We are proud of our achievements and as we reflect we know our accomplishments have been supported by the public.

As the schools close for this year, we wish the seniors success, the students of 1987-88 a happy summer, and our colleagues a joy-filled vacation.

We hope all share in reflecting about the worth and fine job that the public schools do to help our nation grow and remain strong. Our dedication to teach all the children will help to strengthen the goals of a free society.

Volker/Greenspan — they are bad news/good news to market watchers

Wall Street

By George T. Stagg

The market continued to plod along in moderate activity last week with one big day thrown in, just to keep traders on their toes.

While Monday kicked off June in nondescript fashion, Tuesday was a tumultuous session when it was announced that Paul Volker was resigning as chairman of the federal reserve and was being replaced by Alan Greenspan.

At first, the market plunged and then rallied and then fell to close down 11 points with stocks two to one to the downside.

Overnight the market digested the 'bad news/good news' at the Fed and with appropriate bells and whistles, traders saw a strong 42-point rally greet Mr. Greenspan. On Thursday Wall Street experienced a mild 16-point follow through and Friday gave back about 10 points in very light trading.

For the week the Dow had risen about 30 points which was not a bad showing in light of the loss of the very highly respected Volker.

As we move into the month of June, the outlook is promising. To begin with, the big board has seen advances outpace declines consistently for the past two weeks.

The Dow has been flitting around in a 200-point range for nearly two months, certainly a necessary base building period. April Mutual Fund figures indicate a tilt toward equities and a handsome cash position in excess of 10 percent. This cash must eventually be invested.

In sum, it's hot enough to be summer and we are getting those summer rally vibes. Skepticism abounds. All is right with our world.

Welcome to June, the month of brides, Bud and bulls.

Be careful not to overload household electrical circuits

Fire Safety

By Martin Grube
Master Fire Fighter

The summer months are here to stay in Virginia Beach and everyone will be turning on their air conditioners and fans. This may cause some household circuits to overload.

Please consider these helpful safety tips so you won't have any electrical problems this summer.

Replace the air filters or vacuum them. By doing this there is less strain on the fan motor. Cut tall grass and weeds away from the outside unit for the same reason.

If you have to use an extension cord for the window type air conditioner, purchase a commercial or heavy duty type. Check the existing cord for fraying or cracking and replace if necessary.

If the motor is very hot or the fan is old, have it checked out or replace it.

Please enjoy the summer months by checking out and doing preventive maintenance on the air conditioners in your home. Your Virginia Beach professional firefighters will have an increased number of electrically related fires, so please help us.

Drop by any fire station and ask for a pamphlet on fire safety.

Call an electrician immediately. Never use tape to hold circuit breakers in the "on" position. The breaker is designed to kick out so you won't have an electrical fire.

If you smell electrical wires burning, call the fire department immediately and get out of the house. If possible, simply pull the main circuit breaker to kill all the power throughout the house and wait for the fire department to arrive — that's only if conditions permit you to reach the circuit panel.

Please label the circuit panel with the exact location that each breaker controls — this will help the firefighters and the homeowner in an emergency.

Portable fans do not promote much of a fire hazard but their use needs to be addressed for safety sake.

Keep all fan blade guards in place. Unplug the cord and check the cord for fraying and cracking — replace if necessary.

If the motor is very hot or the fan is old, have it checked out or replace it.

Over 100 Beach students accepted to Governor's Magnet School for the Arts

Over 100 Virginia Beach students will attend the 1987-88 Virginia Governor's Magnet School for the Arts. This year, the school will not meet during the summer as it has in the past, but in September.

The Governor's Magnet School will begin intensive school-year programs in music, theatre, visual arts, and dance. The programs are designed for students with high levels of interest and ability in one of the study areas and strong commitment to the work necessary for full development of their talents.

Students accepted for the program will attend academic courses in the mornings at their home schools and then attend art classes in the afternoon in two shifts: 1 to 4:10 p.m. or 2 to 5:10 p.m.

Students will attend courses at a variety of locations including Old Dominion University, Norfolk State University, Tidewater Ballet Studios, the Wells Theatre, the Center Theatre, d'Arts Center and the Hermitage Museum.

Hathaway receives

Virginia Beach resident Dean M. Hathaway of 3288 Page Avenue, was recently awarded a Maroon Citation by the Colgate University Alumni Corporation who he was on campus for his 45th class reunion.

A 1942 graduate of Colgate, Hathaway was a founder, secretary and president of the Colgate Club of Tidewater which, under his leadership, received a special award in 1986 for exemplifying the Colgate spirit.

A cheerleader as a Colgate undergraduate, Hathaway returned to his alma mater in 1974 when he joined the development staff. Two years later he moved on to an alumni affairs post at the King School, and he later served in a similar capacity at Montclair State College.

Thomas graduates from Hargrave Military

Frank H. Thomas, son of Mr. Frank H. Thomas, 1234 Eaglewood Drive, was one of 65 seniors who recently received their diplomas at Hargrave Military Academy.

Fourteen states and two foreign countries were represented in the Class of 1987 who had Colonel Vernon T. Lankford, president of HMA, as its graduation speaker. Lankford, who retiring July 1, has served Hargrave for the past 39 years and the last 17 years as its fourth president.

Dr. Brickell receives honors

Division Superintendent Dr. E. E. Brickell was recently honored on the occasion of his retirement by the State Department of Education and Tidewater Phi Delta Kappa fraternity.

The State Board of Education recently passed a resolution of commendation for Dr. Brickell. The resolution recognized his 19 years as superintendent of Virginia Beach Public Schools, his distinguished career in education, and his achievement in winning the American Association of School Administrators (AASA) 1987 Leadership for Learning Award.

The Tidewater Phi Delta Kappa fraternity also extended a lifetime membership in the organization to Dr. Brickell.

Dr. Benjamin J. Troutman, Jr., director of the Office of Curriculum and Staff Development Services and president of Tidewater Phi Delta Kappa, said in a letter to Dr. Brickell, "... you have encouraged staff and community to focus on the highest ideals and standards. Your inspiration, wisdom, and guidance have been a catalyst for education throughout Tidewater and indeed has had a profound influence in the Commonwealth and the nation."

Barresi makes UNC's spring Dean's List

Gina Barresi, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Barresi of Virginia Beach, has made the Dean's List at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for the spring semester with a grade point average of 4.0.

Barresi, a 1984 honor graduate of Princess Anne High School, is majoring in music education.

Water projects recommended

Program (CIP).

Of these projects, Warnstaff said that seven, which cost less than $50,000 each, have been completed. Design is under way for another eight and will be designed this summer.

In his proposal Monday, Warnstaff submitted nine more projects of the remaining 35 for the next phase in the program. These include Linkhorn Estates, Bells Road, Stewart Drive, River Road, Shorehaven, Dwyer Road, Weaverville, Atlanlon and Bellamy Manor. The staff recommends immediate funding for the engineering design on the water projects.

Recommendations also include:

• Establishing a multi-year program to provide water service to the 35 neighborhoods. The water projects could be completed in five to seven years, but if sewer were added to 27 of the projects, the program would take 15 to 17 years to complete.

• Providing sanitary sewer services concurrently with water projects for only the neighborhoods that submit formal petition requests with 51 percent or more of the property owners requesting sewer service.

• Authorizing revenue bond sales of $4 million a year to provide funding for the new projects.

• Authorizing one additional position in the Public Utilities Department Fiscal Year Operating 1988 budget.

• Using city personnel and equipment to install smaller projects of less than $100,000 each.

• Funding immediate sanitary sewer service to Larkspur along with the Larkspur water project which is in the first 17 water projects.

Warnstaff said that the 35 water projects will cost an estimated $17.3 million. Sewer for the 27 of the 35 projects which do not have sanitary sewer service will cost an estimated $26.9 million.

Under the plan, funding for the projects would be by the sale of $4 million in revenue bonds a year for five years for the water projects alone and for 15 years for both the water and sewer projects.

Of the 27 neighborhoods without city sewer service, Warnstaff said that four have indicated a high interest (57 to 90 percent) in having city sewer service. He added, however, that sometimes people show an interest in sewer until they are advised of the associated costs.

The average cost of the first 17 projects, Warnstaff said, came to $4,000 with the city getting back $700 to $800 per lot in fees.

Sewer costs may vary from $5,000 to $15,000 a lot with the line fees coming to $1,000 to $2,000 a lot.

If the program is approved by Council, the staff would incorporate the program in the next Capital Improvement Program and request the Council to authorize funding from the Water and Sewer Fund for the Larkspur sanitary sewer engineering design ($80,000); authorize funding from the water and sewer fund of $992,000 for the engineering design for the next nine neighborhood projects ($374,000 water - nine projects, and $418,000 sewer - six projects) - the sewer design would be initiated if petitions are submitted and the 51 percent level is reached and authorize one new civil engineer (furniture and equipment) in the 1987-88 budget from the operating budget's reserve for contingencies.

Golden Years

Promoting special, healthier lifestyles for our very special senior citizens

The more Virginia Beach, Chesapeake and Portsmouth senior citizens know about aging and the elderly, the better equipped they are to understand the pleasures of growing older.

The following information allows seniors to realize they are not alone in their golden years, and should expect to many, many more happy times ahead.

Most older people are healthy and lead active, satisfying lives. A 1985 survey found that 69% reported their health as excellent or good. A 1981 survey found that one-fourth spent 'a lot of time' exercising and that large majorities had gone shopping, eaten at a restaurant, attended church or synagogue, or visited the home of a neighbor or relative in the previous month.

According to a 1982 national survey, there were about 5.1 million people 65 years or older living in the community who need the assistance of another person or a special aid to perform one or more selected personal care or home management activities. This figure represented 20% of all noninstitutionalized older people in the country.

The percentage needing assistance was higher for older women (22%) than for older men (17%). The percentage also rose rapidly with age. Only 14% of people 65-74 years of age required such help compared to 26% of people 75-84 and 48% (or almost half) of those 85 years or older.

Some of the activities which caused the most difficulty for older people (as reported in the 1984 survey) are as follows:

• Heavy work around the house (3.8 million, 14.8%)

• Shopping for groceries (2.9 million, 11.4%)

• Going places outside walking distance (2.4 million, 9.3%)

• Bathing (2.1 million, 8.4%)

• Doing laundry (2.1 million, 8.1%)

• Getting around outside (2.0 million, 8%)

• Preparing meals (1.5 million, 6.0%)

• Getting in or out of bed (1.3 million, 5.2%)

• Managing one's own money (1.3 million, 5.1%)

In addition, about 2.1 million (8.3%) were impaired in their cognitive functioning and 1.2 million (4.8%) experienced problems with continence.

Among the unpaid caregivers of elderly people who required personal assistance in 1982, over one-third (36%) were spouses, a similar percentage were children (37%), and about one-fourth (27%) were other relatives or nonrelatives. Most (72%) were women and over one-third (36%) were themselves elderly (65 years or older). Conflicting demands on the caregivers' time were common. One-fifth (21%) had children under 18 in the household, about 9% had quit their jobs to become a caregiver, and 20% had some form of work or other.

conflict (e.g., working fewer hours or rearranging work schedules).

Most older people have at least one chronic condition and many have multiple conditions.

According to a 1984 national survey, the most frequently occurring conditions for the elderly were: arthritis (53%), hypertension (42%), hearing impairments (40%), heart disease (34%), cataracts (23%), orthopedic impairments (19%), sinusitis and visual impairments (14%) and hardening of the arteries (12%), and cerebrovascular disease and diabetes (10% each).

Older people accounted for 30% of all hospital stays and 41% of all days of care in hospitals in 1984. The average length of a hospital stay was 8.9 days for older people, compared to only 5.6 days for people under 65. The average length of stay for older people has decreased over 5 years since 1968 and nearly 2 days since 1980. Older people also under 65 (8 visits vs. 5 visits).

Another national survey in 1984 found that one of every five (21%) noninstitutionalized elderly people used one or more of a group of nine specified

TCC classes focusing on aging offered

The Virginia Beach campus of Tidewater Community College will offer three courses on aging during the 1987 summer quarter. "Gerontology I" is scheduled on Tuesday and Thursday mornings 9:30 to 10:45 a.m. The class will examine stereotypes about aging, reasons for aging and the changes we experience as we age.

"The Psychology of Aging" will be offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays, 11:00 to 12:15 p.m. The course will cover the effects of aging on personality, memory, intelligence and sexuality. Age-related sensory changes will also be discussed.

"Communicating with the aging" will be taught as a weekend workshop. The class will meet on Friday evenings, July 17 and 31, from 5:30 to 9:55 p.m. and on Saturdays, July 18 and August 1, 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m. Topics include effective communication skills, dealing with dementia, how to communicate with those experiencing sensory losses, dealing with depression and working with families of the aging.

Summer quarter registration continues through June 12.

Classes begin June 15. For more information on these courses, contact 427-7205.

Maryview sets dinner forums

Maryview Hospital will present two "Food for Thought Dinner Forums" in June.

They will feature:

• "Hearing Loss, Causes & Treatment" on Thursday, June 11, by E. A. Murden Jr., M.D., otolaryngology at Tidewater E.N.T. Inc.

• "Modern Developments in Hearing Aid Technology," on Thursday, June 25, by Gary S. Leffke, M.S., CCC-A, audiologist at Virginia Audiology Associates.

The cost for each program is $2 and free for Senior Advantage members. For more information call 398-2328.

community services. The highest rates of usage were for services provided in the community rather than in the home. Senior centers were used by 4.0 million (15%), congregate meals by 2.1 million (8%), and transportation programs by 1.2 million (5%).

Services provided in the home were used less frequently. For example, visiting nurses were used by 775,000 (3%), home-delivered meals by 497,000 (2%), home health aides by 425,000 (2%), and homemakers by 376,000 (1%).

Christian Broadcasting Network forced to cut back; nearly 500 laid off

The Christian Broadcasting Network recently announced several measures designed to respond to a drop in revenue.

The cutbacks include reductions in the workforce, budget reductions in most major ministry areas, elimination of CBN's current toll free 800 number, and indefinite delay of plans for construction projects.

Falling revenues have necessitated an immediate $25 million budget reduction which includes a layoff of 500 regular, part-time, and on-call ministry personnel. This will reduce the world wide CBN regular and part-time workforce from 2,104 to 1,634 and constitute a 22.3 percent reduction in force.

"I am heartbroken when I consider the consequences to these godly, dedicated people and their families," said Dr. M. G. "Pat" Robertson, founder and chief executive officer of CBN, in a press release.

In moves designed to provide maximum outplacement assistance to those affected by the layoffs, CBN is providing a special series of seminars, training, and counseling designed to maximize their ability to obtain alternative employment.

In addition to special employment training, severance and insurance benefits extended by CBN, the Virginia Employment Commission will provide special on-site training concerning employment benefits and job opportunities.

CBN will be eliminating its toll-free 800 number within two weeks. Counseling will still be available to all who contact CBN counseling center, but the calls will be paid for by the caller as was the case until 1984 when the 800 number was introduced on a national scale. There will be two call-in numbers, one for the west coast (714) 921-0700 and one for the east coast, (804) 420-0700.

These numbers will go in effect in late June.

Other major reductions will include curtailing 6 a.m. and weekend repeats of 'The 700 Club' television show in some markets. This will not affect the live airing of the show on broadcast stations or cable systems.

Although seminars and conferences now being conducted by CBN will continue to be provided, planned construction of an international seminar and conference center on the CBN grounds will be put on hold indefinitely.

"In spite of this serious cutback, we are striving to continue with the thrust of CBN's ministry to people across our nation and around the world," said Tim Robertson, president of CBN.

New efforts to meet needs include the launching of a new nationwide radio network which will provide a package of contemporary Christian music, news, and special interactive version of 'The 700 Club'; expanding the CBN outreach via its Middle East Television operation; new efforts in the area of publishing and home video production; and revamping of 'The 700 Club' television show.

24th Annual Shrine Circus set for June 18-21

Khedi Temple's 24th Annual Shrine Hamid-Morton Circus will be at the Union-Kempsville Stadium (Center for Effective Learning — CEL School), located at Virginia Beach Boulevard at Witchduck Road.

It will run from Thursday, June 18 through Sunday, June 21. There will be two performances daily at 2:30 and 8 p.m. on Thursday and Friday and three on Saturday at 12:30, 4 and 8 p.m. There will also be two performances on Sunday at 4 and 8 p.m.

Benefiting Shrine activities in the Tidewater area, this all-new three-ring circus is family entertainment with no side-shows or added attractions.

The general admission of $3 for adults and $2.50 for children is all that is required for the performance which is presented within the stadium infield.

Each year, Khedi Temple with the generosity of local merchants, make available free tickets to deserving children, disabled persons and senior citizens.

Over 50,000 free tickets are being distributed this year by Tidewater police and fire departments, civic organizations radio and television stations and the members of Khedi Temple's Circus Daddies Club.

For more information contact the Circus general chairman George T. Stagg at 428-4747 or 422-2700. The circus telephone number may be obtained from Khedi Temple's Recorders Office, 622-5206.

Shore Drive, Atlantic Avenue traffic to be restricted during triathlon

Traffic in the Fort Story area of Virginia Beach will be restricted on Sunday, June 14 from 7:30 to 10:30 a.m. during the Second Annual East Coast Triathlon.

Eastbound traffic on Shore Drive, from Bayville Road to Atlantic Avenue, will be limited to one lane. Traffic on westbound Shore Drive, from Bayville Road to the west gate of Fort Story, will be restricted to one lane.

Also closed will be one lane of traffic in either direction on Atlantic Avenue to 47th Street.

The Green Beach, located just inside the north-end beach entrance to Fort Story, will be closed until noon.

Traffic may be stopped at brief periodic intervals to accommodate the almost 500 athletes participating in the event.

Sponsored by Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Virginia, the triathlon is attracting athletes from 30 states.

Triathlon champ to present race clinic

The East Coast Triathlon will feature a race clinic, presented by Dave Scott, five-time champion of the Ironman Triathlon World Championship, on Saturday, June 13, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. at the host hotel Virginia Beach Resort and Conference Center on Shore Drive.

Scott, who broke all course records in last year's Ironman competition, will offer advice to athletes on training for triathlons as well as issues of physical and emotional endurance.

The clinic is free and open to the public. Participants in the East Coast Triathlon, to be held Sunday, June 14, are encouraged to attend.

Results of the 1986-1987 Science Research Associates (SRA) achievement test, administered to all Virginia students in grades 4, 8 and 11, show that Virginia Beach students continue to score well above the national average (50th percentile).

The SRA achievement test is the primary component of the Virginia State Assessment Program, reported to the General Assembly of Virginia, the State Board of Education, and the general public on how school systems compare nationally and within the State of Virginia.

The 1987 Virginia Beach SRA test results reaffirm indication of earlier measures of program performance and student achievement; Virginia Beach students continue to perform at levels significantly higher than the average for their national, state, and local area counterparts.

Fourth graders scored at the 71st percentile on the composite of reading, math, and language arts tests; eighth graders scored at the 66th percentile, and 11th graders scored at the 69th percentile.

A 70th percentile average level of performance, for instance, means that a Virginia Beach student's achievement is as high or higher than 70 percent of students nationwide who took the test.

The higher the percentile scores are to begin with, the greater the difficulty in posting any real change from year to year, particularly when more than 13,000 students in a school division take the test, as in Virginia Beach. Last year, 11th graders scored one percentile point lower; eighth graders, two percentile points lower; and fourth graders, three percentile points higher.

The Virginia Department of Education has used the same test in school divisions across the state since 1982, but 1987 was the last year that the test will be used. A new test will be administered next year based on updated norms, but which standardized test will be given to Virginia students has not yet been determined by the State Board of Education.

Of the 1987 scores in Virginia Beach, Division Superintendent Dr. E. E. Brickell said, "I am always pleased with our high scores. They consistently show that our schools are providing education of the highest quality."

Beach Genealogical Soc. to hold meeting June 11

The Virginia Beach Genealogical Society will meet on Thursday, June 11, from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at King's Grant Presbyterian Church. The church is located at 745 Little Neck Road.

The public is invited to attend. For more information, call 467-0033 or 340-6373.

Disabled and senior citizen residents may qualify for tax reduction program

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Virginia and the city council of Virginia Beach have provided a program of exemption, deferral or freeze of real estate taxes for qualifying Virginia Beach residents.

Applications for the tax year July 1, 1987, through June 30, 1988, will be taken in the Real Estate Assessor's Office, City Hall, by appointment only through June 30.

Inquiries from senior citizens and disabled persons are welcome.

To qualify, citizens must be 65-years-old or older or be totally disabled (no age limit).

Also, the following requirements must be met. A person's annual household income must not exceed $18,000 (the first $5,000 of income of each relative living in the dwelling other than spouse of the owner is excluded) and net worth must not exceed $50,000 (with the principle residence being excluded).

The last requirement is that applicants must have resided in Virginia Beach for at least two years.

For more information or to set an appointment call 427-8847.

32nd annual draws 315 artists

350,000 expected at Boardwalk Art Show

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

Don't mention the word "rain" this weekend to anyone at the Virginia Beach Arts Center. If anything could ruin this week's Boardwalk Art Show, that's it.

"There are no contingency plans," said Pat Richardson, coordinator of the annual event. "But everybody takes the weather well."

Richardson said artists who go to these type of events are usually prepared for inclement weather, doing what is necessary to protect their art.

This year is the 32nd year for the Boardwalk Art Show and Richardson said, "I think the quality will come up to last year's event. And last year we had a fine, fine show."

Pulling the show off has been Richardson's responsibility over the last nine months. In the weeks following the Neptune Arts and Crafts Show, Richardson gears up for the Boardwalk Art Show by organizing the many committees to take care of tasks and details of the massive event.

"Tempers run short sometimes. Displays take hours to set up and the judging starts at 10 a.m. on Thursday," — Boardwalk Art Show coordinator Pat Richardson on working with the artists.

Besides getting all the applications together, screening all the artists' work, working through the various logistics with city officials and organizing all the volunteers, Richardson said her biggest challenge is seeking donations from various people and organizations to make the event a profit-making venture.

"We take in over $100,000," said Richardson. "The more we can get to help, the more we can take in as profit." Last year, said Richardson, after paying for the tents, the costs of printing up the applications and programs, paying and housing the judges for their weekend's work, and having the $12,500 in prize money available, the art show made $50,000 for the Arts Center which sponsors the event.

Once the show is underway, said Richardson, one of her toughest jobs is, "Keeping all the artist happy on Thursday morning."

After they have driven all night and are trying to set up for the show before the judges start making their rounds, "tempers run short sometimes," she said. "Displays take hours to set up and the judging starts at 10 a.m. on Thursday."

What really makes it hard on some artists is the city's blocking off the 13th and 14th street stubs. For the artists whose booths are in that vicinity it means they have to carry their work further from their cars while unloading.

The event has grown steadily since its beginning in 1956. If all goes as planned, Richardson expects to have 350,000 people come to the event and see what

Controversial "print tent" makes its debut at Boardwalk Art Show

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

"Why not try it? If it's a bomb, it's a bomb."

That's the feeling of Virginia Beach artist Jeannie Johnston on having a "print tent" at this year's Boardwalk Art Show, Virginia Beach's longest enduring event.

Show officials have introduced the print tent, despite some opposition by artists, that feature inexpensive reproductions of work by 30 of the 315 Boardwalk artists taking part in this year's show. The prints will be available in all sizes and styles ranging in price from a few dollars to a maximum of $85.

The print tent, which goes against the show's "no commercially reproduced prints" rule, will be located on the 15th block midway.

Virginia Beach resident Liz Wallace, who was the assistant curator at the Virginia Beach Arts Center from 1980 to 1984 is now manager at Art Images on Laskin Road, said she has talked with area artists who think that making photo-mechanical prints available takes away from original art work and degrades the show.

Not so, said Maria Morando, a Beach resident who is entering her art in the show for the first time this year. "I don't think it is debasing," she said. "I think it's a way to get exposure."

"I don't think it is debasing. I think it's a way to get exposure." — Maria Morando, Virginia Beach artist.

Morando said because the prices on her originals are not in everyone's price range, she knows she will not sell too many paintings over the course of the weekend. To compensate, she said, making her work available in the form of a print makes it more affordable for the average person.

Too many times, said Morando, she has gone to art shows where the people "like the art,

"There are artists who are going to have their nose put out of joint. You'll never please everyone." — Beach artist Jeannie Johnston.

think it's great, but aren't willing to pay the money to buy it."

If it wasn't for the print tent in this year's show, Morando said, she wouldn't take part in it.

Vonnie Whitworth, a Kempsville resident who for the past 15 years has taken part in the Boardwalk Art Show, said, "It will be interesting to see how successful it will be."

While she said she doesn't think she will ever make her art available in print form because it tends toward commercialization, she knows that "commercial art" as she calls it can be a "big means of income for many artists," she said.

For those artists who have to support a family, she said, she can understand the need for having a print tent.

Beach artist Jessica Pace-Berkeley, who has taken part in the Boardwalk Art Show for the past nine years, said she didn't think this year's print tent would be a problem if "the public is properly educated about the difference between an original and a mechanically reproduced print."

In past years, she said, she has known of artists who, while keeping a watchful eye out for Boardwalk Art Show officials, sold prints even though it was against the rules.

With the print tent, she said, this kind of behind-the-back activity might be better monitored.

Boardwalk Art Show officials said they have taken great pains to try to foresee any problems with the print tent. Pat Richardson of the Virginia Beach Art Center said they called officials of other shows from around the country who have had print tents to discuss what works and what doesn't.

For the Boardwalk Art Show, rules have been established to make sure everyone knows what

Neptune Festival Committee announces King Neptune XIV

The 1987 Neptune Festival Chairman Roger M. Pierce recently announced the "coronation" of E. R. "Dick" Cockrell Jr. as King Neptune XIV to reign over the September 18-27 celebration.

Cockrell succeeds Van H. Cunningham who sported the traditional crown, sceptre and bejeweled robe during last year's Festival, which saw a record attendance of more than 750,000 for the citywide event.

"Dick" Cockrell was selected to be King Neptune XIV for his diligent work as a civic volunteer and his role as an unofficial ambassador of community good will for the city of Virginia Beach. He exemplifies the kind of community pride that the Neptune Festival was created to showcase," said Pierce.

Cockrell, who kept the standing-room only crowd chuckling throughout his acceptance speech, said more important is his ability to grow a beard. "I'm growing one right now," he said. "I haven't shaved since about 11 a.m." The announcement came at about 1:30 p.m.

A self-described "country humorist and farmer," Cockrell served as the city's Agriculture Department director from 1963 to 1986. He served as grand marshal for this year's Strawberry Festival and is the recipient of numerous honors, including the Distinguished Service Award for the State of Virginia in 1985, the 1983 Outstanding Individual Award from the Virginia Cooperative Extension Service and the Chamber of Commerce's Architectural

Darrel Hughes to oppose Croshaw

Virginia Beach resident Darrel J. Hughes was recently nominated by city Republicans to run against state Delegate Glenn R. Croshaw in the November race for the 81st District House seat.

Hughes, 46, said he had decided two months ago to oppose Croshaw but postponed his announcement until now.

Though his opponent spent more than $100,000 in his unsuccessful effort to win the House seat last December in a special election against Melvin M. Spence, Hughes said he promised to run a grass roots campaign, spending a maximum of $35,000.

Hughes announcement makes him the only Republican to challenge a Democratic incumbent in November's General Assembly race. Rae H. LeSesne, who is running against Democratic state Senator Clarence A. Holland, is running on an independent ticket.

Hughes was Del. H. R. "Bob" Purkey's campaign manager two years ago but has never run for office.

Hughes is married, has two children, owns several real estate and construction companies, and lives in the city's Harbor Point section.

Council gives TGIF lukewarm reception

By Lee Cahill
Staff Writer

For some City Council members it's not TGIF, but "TG it's in Norfolk."

Proposals that the Beach sponsor its own version of TGIF (Thank God It's Friday) have met a lukewarm reception on city council. The party takes place during the happy hour (you guessed it, on Friday) at Norfolk's Waterside. It has proven to be so popular that the idea has come up in Virginia Beach to come up.

The idea seems to have the backing of the new central business district organization in the Pembroke area and the Arts and Humanities Commission which would share in the proceeds for its new Arts Center.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce suggested the bash be held at Mount Trashmore, but that proposal gave way to some site in the Pembroke area, Virginia

Beach's so-called central business district.

But Monday afternoon, Councilman Harold Heischbier said that there is an "assumption on the part of many people that the city is the supreme and prime mover of the project." He said that he had received a letter from Bill Miller, past president of the Virginia Beach Restaurant Association and a member of the boards of the state and local associations, recommending caution in the project.

Miller cited the problems of with supervision in an open area where alcohol is served.

Miller said later that there is nothing wrong with having community events, but that the Restaurant Association opposes the inclusion of alcoholic beverages. He said that it was tough enough to enforce laws relating to alcohol consumption in a restaurant, but putting human

Henley wants city to complete its history before its too late

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

If the city doesn't do something quickly, said Councilwoman Barbara Henley, much of the city's history will be gone along with the people who created it.

Henley wants the city to consider hiring a professional to inventory historical sites and also to compile the history of Virginia Beach.

At a work session Monday afternoon, council directed City Manager Thomas H. Muehlenbeck to bring back recommendations. Muehlenbeck said that he plans to ask the City Attorney's Office and Planning Department for recommendations and to discuss the possibility of contracting with a state agency, such as Old Dominion University, to provide the necessary research.

The city's landmarks have been threatened by rapid development and the lack of any city policy concerning historical sites.

The most recent case involved the Ferry Farm House on the Southern Branch of the Lynnhaven River which was deeded by the developer to the Virginia Beach Art Center.

"At this point," said Henley, she was not aware of any official work being done on the history of Princess Anne County. The council and the city of Virginia Beach merged in 1963.

She said that the city needed a review of the historical sites and "pulling together of history." She said it would be good to have

Boardwalk Art Show benefits everyone

The Boardwalk Art Show is Virginia Beach's longest enduring event. And for good reason. For nine months of the year, organizers at the Virginia Beach Arts Center make sure every detail is taken care of and nothing is left undone.

All their efforts should be applauded. While thousands of people come to see the art, at the same time they get a taste of Virginia Beach. When the event is good, the city naturally looks good.

This year, 315 artists from across the country will be taking part in the event. Crafts, jewelry, oil and water color paintings, pottery and more will be exhibited, including the work of almost 100 area artists.

The city also benefits in another way. The Boardwalk Art show generates tourism income. Local businesses do more business when events like the art show take place and the local economy is strengthened.

All their efforts should be applauded. While thousands of people come to see the art, at the same time they get a taste of Virginia Beach. When the event is good, the city naturally looks good.

The Boardwalk Art Show also provides an opportunity for people to have direct contact with professional artists. There are very few other opportunities for residents to interact with so many high caliber artists. While the average citizen may or may not be able to afford much of what is available at the art show, the opportunity to learn is free.

The Virginia Beach art community also benefits from the art show because it helps them raise funds toward the building of their new facility. The condition of the current Art Center's limits what they can do. Once the new building is completed, the artists in the area will enjoy what the new building will offer and all Virginia Beach residents will benefit from having such a facility in the city.

This weekend's art show may last only four days and everyone will have their opinion on what they liked and disliked. But when it is over, anyone who took part in the event can say the city is a little bit better because of it. — J.D.B.

Congratulations to graduates!

This past week, thousands of Beach residents ceremoniously took part in graduation exercises at high schools, colleges and universities across the nation. As proud parents, friends and relatives looked on, the students concluded their degree programs with all pomp and circumstance, decked in robes and eager to turn their tassels.

Armed with their new diplomas, the students will be going on to many different opportunities. Some will be heading on to further education, others to jobs or military careers. Whatever the case, the excitement of knowing a milestone has been surpassed is greatly gratifying.

What graduation degrees really signify are foundations. A foundation of learning, an educational base to build on, a stepping stone from which to reach higher plateaus. More than anything else, graduation ceremonies are a time to sit back and reflect on what has been accomplished and what future direction will be taken.

Probably more exciting than knowing a new level has been reached is the recognition of the possibilities that lay ahead. For those that have strived to complete whatever the degree requirements called for, whether it be a high school degree, a bachelor's degree, a master's or even a doctorate, the degree is not the end of the road.

What graduation degrees really signify are foundations. A foundation of learning, an educational base to build on, a stepping stone from which to reach higher plateaus. More than anything else, graduation ceremonies are a time to sit back and reflect on what has been accomplished and what future direction will be taken.

Congratulations to all the Virginia Beach residents who took part in graduation exercises this past week. The community is proud of your accomplishments and looks forward to what your future holds. — J.D.B.

It's time to grow up

I've always wondered when I would start feeling old. I don't mean old old. I mean "grown-up."

Well, I think "grown-upness" is becoming a reality to me now. At the tender age of 28 it's getting harder to think of myself as a young buck anymore.

When I analyze it, I would have to say my change in lifestyle has not so much to do with age as with the addition of our second child.

Ask any parent. The first child is usually easy to adjust to. With one kid, two adults can usually maintain a sense of order.

The second child drastically changes things. The ratio of parent to adult suddenly shifts from 2-1 to 1-1. Everything must be dealt with differently at that point.

I'm not saying that children age you (I'm not saying they don't either), but with the advent of little ones, things must necessarily change. You can still think in terms of being footloose and fancy-free, but practically, things cannot stay the same.

I also find it impossible to "cruise" in my car. Nothing can make you look aloof when there are two child seats in the back.

Youth tends to bring along with it a certain amount of impetuosity. There's nothing like going to a movie at the drop of a hat.

With age comes self control, at least a measure of it. An evening spent at home quietly reading or sitting on the front porch and watching cars go by is all the excitement needed after the dinner/play time/bath time ritual of a three-year old.

Then there is the matter of a car. There is still something in me that desires a sporty little hot rod to zip around in. But like I said, age brings practicality. Sporty cars rarely have come in a 4-door model.

I also find it impossible to "cruise" in my car. Nothing can make you look aloof when there are two child seats in the back.

I also noticed my shopping habits have changed. Different stores attract different age groups and I now find myself frequenting the family-oriented stores rather than the up-beat fashion stores and the sports stores. Now I only glance in the record and tape shop because I don't even recognize the names of the recording artists anymore!

And another thing. The note my wife slipped into my pocket before I left for work. It used to be a love note — now it's a grocery list.

Despite all these changes, I wouldn't want it any other way. Fast cars, high fashion and all the things which goes along with that kind of lifestyle takes its toll. Having children helped me realize this.

While it may appear that children may create chaos in a family's schedule, in the proper perspective they are a stabilizing influence. "Big kids" like me are forced to grow up and face the facts of life.

I wonder what our third child will teach me.

Watch for travel scams

During the past several months, travel scams have cost Virginia Beach consumers a great deal of aggravation, disappointment and money. In fact, millions of dollars have been lost nationwide. The Better Business Bureau feels that it's time consumers become better educated on this problem.

A report on the American Society of Travel Agents' April 10 conference entitled, "What is a Travel Scam?" as prepared by the Standards and Practices Division of the Council of Better Business Bureaus, "now available."

It details the many ways in which travel scams operate, the problems facing consumers involved, and the difficulties confronting law enforcement agencies in bringing action against companies.

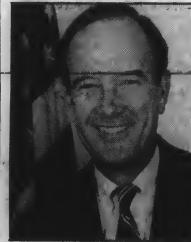

For more information, consumers may call the Bureau at 627-5651 southside, 851-1901 on the Peninsula or 872-9140 in Williamsburg to receive reports of travel companies and the Bureau's free booklet on travel scams.

House renews commitment to older Americans

Congressman Owen Pickett

The House of Representatives recently voted overwhelmingly last week to extend through 1991 the Older Americans Act of 1965, which has helped thousands of elderly Americans increase their independence and lead more productive lives.

The House vote was a wise one indeed. Since its inception, the Older Americans Act has offered strong support to state and local agencies that manage senior citizens' centers; transportation and nutrition services, including the very popular "meals on wheels" program; and legal and employment assistance.

The Older Americans Act is also a principal source of funding for much of the federally-conducted research into Alzheimer's Disease and other acute problems faced by the elderly. It represents a true partnership between the federal government and the states.

Under the bill we approved, approximately $1.6 billion will be available to sustain these programs next year. Also included in the bill is a new initiative to provide in-home services to the "frail elderly," and an expansion of an existing ombudsman program that investigates complaints of abuse and neglect in nursing homes and other long-term care facilities.

Hampton Roads, which boasts a large and very active senior community, stands much to gain from our extension of the Older Americans Act. Last year, the Southeastern Virginia Area-wide Model Program (SEVAMP), the lead agency for Older Americans programs in Norfolk, Virginia Beach and several other local jurisdictions, received approximately $2 million under the act.

Those funds helped to support 18 senior-citizens centers in the Second Congressional District, places where the elderly can receive day care and engage in arts, crafts and other activities.

They enabled SEVAMP to serve more than 297,000 congregates and homebound meals to the elderly last year alone. And funding from the Older Americans Act has made it possible for SEVAMP to maintain a fleet of cars and vans that take older citizens shopping, to the doctor and to other places vital to independence.

We live in an era in which the typical retiring American can look forward to witnessing a whole new generation. Statistics indicate that an average 65-year-old man can look forward to 15 more years; a woman 19 more years.

While this so-called "Longevity Revolution" is a cause for celebration, it is also a source of national challenge.

We face the responsibility of providing adequate health care to our aging population. We face the opportunity of drawing on the wealth of talent and experience that elderly people have to offer, resources that are only now being realized.

And we must strive to ensure that senior citizens enjoy the widest possible independence.

With its provisions for nutrition, transportation, legal and medical assistance, the Older Americans Act has for two decades advanced these objectives. I am hopeful that the Senate will soon join the House in reauthorizing it.

Right to read takes on special importance during the summer months

Let's Talk

By Rob Jones
President
Virginia Beach
Education Assoc.

For kids, we are starting the lazy, hazy days of summer. It should be a time for fun, summer jobs, rest, and travel.

Summer should also be a time to cultivate the love of reading. It is not hard to do and takes only minutes a day. Reading activity can be done by infants and senior citizens.

I just read in the newspaper about the results of the achievement tests for the Tidewater area. I know a surefire way to improve those scores significantly in every school division across the country and it won't cost taxpayers one penny more.

If every pre-school and school-age child spent 30 minutes a day reading or doing reading readiness activities, test scores would zoom.

Many families have learned the advantage of a weekly trip to the public library. Combining this activity with a "Right to Read" activity each day, and all who participate will be benefiting and learning.

The newspaper is fine. Books about a favorite pastime or mysteries or adventures can be read a chapter a day.

For younger readers, the cassette-taped stories that follow along with a storybook are great. Just reading to a child at any time is fine.

Before the advent of the television, many families read to each other in the evenings. It still can be done.

The important thing to remember is that a special time is set aside each day so that everybody in the household can practice and enjoy the most wonderful skill of all, reading.

"Right to Read" is for adults, too

As I advocate the right to read for school age children, I must address the need to read and improve the reading skills of our adult population as well. Virginia Beach is not exempt from the problems of the functionally illiterate adult.

As a community, we have already accepted the responsibility to teach reading to any adult that becomes motivated to learn to improve his or her reading ability. The Virginia Beach School's Adult Learning Center, directed by Jim Darden, helps hundreds of citizens learn to read each month.

Courses are offered in reading development and English as a second language, but there are more adults that need reading proficiency help that are not yet motivated or are not able to avail themselves of adult education for various reasons.

More help is on the way. Tidewater Community College, Virginia Beach Campus, is serving as community host for the first national video teleconference on adult illiteracy and its impact on the workforce on Tuesday, June 23, 7:15 p.m.

As Richard Hoelein, director of Continuing Education at the College said in a letter to employers, "The purpose of this important and unprecedented event is to bring together, in each of 1,000 communities, leaders of literacy action programs with other leaders from industry, government, labor, and community groups to develop a coordinated, comprehensive literacy education action program for their locale."

The teleconference is the start of an ambitious undertaking endorsed by VBEA. In addition to the talents and contributions of TCC, other major players in this effort are the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce, Virginia Beach and the Adult Learning Center.

For more information and/or to reserve a space, please call the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce (490-1221) or TCC's Office of Continuing Education (427-7195).

Two Beach men sought by Crime Solvers

Virginia Beach Crime Solvers is asking for assistance in locating Charles Edward Burden Jr. and Roger Maurice Brickhouse.

Both are being sought for crimes committed in Virginia Beach.

Fire insurance: protect your belongings

By Martin Grube
Master Fire Fighter

On May 22, Virginia Beach firefighters encountered one of the most devastating fires to occur in Virginia Beach. Twenty-four apartments were consumed by the blaze. Now ask yourself one question - is fire insurance really needed?

Apartment dwellers are not covered by the landlords fire insurance. If your building burns down and your personal belongings are incinerated, you have absolutely no recourse to recover your losses.

Fire insurance for apartment dwellers can be purchased at any insurance company. The cost is around $130 a year, depending on type of coverage and amount of coverage.

If you are renting a house or rent with option to buy, you still should have renters insurance.

Did you know that if you are found responsible for a fire in an apartment building because of your negligence, you could be held liable for repairs? That's right, fire insurance works the same way as auto insurance.

Another problem area is home owners fire insurance. The mortgage companies require fire insurance for the duration of the loan, usually, 30 years, but many elderly homeowners drop the coverage after the loan is paid off.

Why would someone work for 30 years to acquire their belongings and leave them in such a vulnerable condition? Keep the fire insurance on your home.

Homeowner tips

Pesticide care is important

By Gayle Zydron

Virginia Beach Extension Agent

Most pesticides on the market today can be potentially harmful to Virginia Beach residents if they get on or into the body. However, proper selection and care of clothing can help reduce the hazard of pesticide application.

Pesticides are classified into three levels of toxicity. The more toxic a pesticide, the more care should be taken in protection against contamination and in laundering clothes.

Look for the words in the following table to determine toxic level.

—Use the presoak cycle on your automatic washer. Let the presoak water drain, and then refill with fresh water for detergent washing.
•Wear rubber gloves when handling contaminated clothes. Carefully wash after each use and use only for this purpose.
•Wash pesticide-contaminated clothes in hot water 140°F with a heavy duty laundry detergent.
•Don't wash too many clothes at one time and use the full water level on the machine. Contaminated clothes need plenty of water and room to clean properly.
•Wash for 12-14 minutes and used, wash the item two or three times.

•If your washer has a suds-saver system, do not use it when laundering contaminated clothes.

•Line dry the clothes to keep from contaminating the dryer.

•Before washing the family's clothes, clean washing machine by running an empty load using hot water and detergent.

•Thoroughly wash all boots, hats, gloves, aprons, and goggles inside and out in detergent and hot water after each use.

•Test gloves for leaks by filling them with water and gently squeezing.

•If respirators are used, clean and care for them according to manufacturer's instructions.

Precautions

•Keep clothes, hats, boots, gloves, etc., worn for pesticide application separate from others, and wear only for that purpose.

•Inspect clothes often to make certain there are no rips or tears that will allow pesticides to get to your skin.

•Always wash hands thoroughly before eating, smoking, or going to the bathroom. Pesticide residue could be transferred to food, cigarettes, or other parts of the body.

•Immediately after applying a pesticide, shower and wash your hair. Don't forget to scrub under fingernails and to clean ears.

•If clothes get wet with pesticides, change immediately. If the pesticide was highly toxic, carefully bury or burn the clothes as high concentration of toxic pesticides is almost impossible to remove.

•Avoid wearing watches or any other jewelry that may become contaminated.

•Avoid a leather watch band, as it cannot be properly cleaned.

•Never wash baby clothes in family wash which may contain a prewash article of clothing from someone who has used pesticides.

To avoid any cross-contamination, please wash baby clothes by themselves.

For additional hints, call or write me at 427-4511 for publication #246-139, "Selection and Care of Clothing Used for Pesticide Application."

*Toxicity of the pesticide may vary depending on the formulated product. Use the key word as an indicator of the toxicity level.

Care of clothing

When laundering pesticide-contaminated clothes, take the following precautions to protect other family members:

•Have a separate covered container for contaminated clothes. Do not put them with other clothes to be laundered. A plastic garbage can works well.

•Wash pesticide-contaminated clothes after each use. The longer the pesticide is in the clothes, the harder it is to remove.

•Prepare clothes in one of these ways:

—Spray or hose them as they hang on a line outdoors. Be sure children and pets are out of the way.

—Soak them in a tub or bucket. Dispose of water properly.

use a double rinse cycle if possible.

Marine Science Museum sponsors trips to False Cape State Park

This summer, the Virginia Marine Science Museum will sponsor five field trips to False Cape State Park.

The trips will take place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Wednesdays, June 17, July 8 and 22, and August 12 and 26.

Each trip will focus on different aspects of the park's environment which consists of miles of uninhabited coast and Back Bay shoreline at the southern end of Virginia Beach below Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge.

Participants will meet at the museum at 9 a.m. and carpool to Little Island Park where they will be transported into False Cape by state park staff. Lunch will be provided at the park's Wash Woods Environmental Education Center.

Registration is required at least a week in advance. Children under 16 must be accompanied by an adult. The fee is $5 for museum members and $7.50 for non-members.

For information on field trip topics and registration, call the museum at 425-3476.

Bush wins kick-boxing North American title

Virginia Beach kick-boxer Curtis Bush won the International Sport Karate Association's North American Welterweight Championship after scoring a second round knockout of Robert Visitation of Shreveport, La.

The title fight was held in Lake Tahoe, Nevada and was set for 10 rounds.

Bush improved his record to 26-4 with 19 knockouts while Visitation entered the fight with 46-10-27 record.

Bush's fight promoter Dave Miller said the championship match is set to air on ESPN cable later this month. The tentative telecast date is Tuesday, June 23, at 8 p.m., he said.

Charlotte/Daytona dash again rained out

Langley Correspondent

It just doesn't seem in the cards for the drivers of NASCAR's Charlotte/Daytona Dash Division to get a chance to run at Langley Speedway.

For the second time this year the Dashers were rained out at Langley on Saturday. That race was a reschedule of the April 18 race that was washed out by rain. They'll try it again July 11 in another regularly scheduled Langley feature.

Also lost was a 100-lap Late Model Stock Car event, as well as a 30-lap Grand Stock feature and 20 laps for both the All-American and Mini-Stock Divisions.

The rainout also left unchanged several tight point races. In the Late Model Division, Roger Sawyer has a 20 point lead over Phil Warren, with third place Chip Hudson well back, 74 points behind.

The Grand Stocks have a good race in progress, with Buddy

Hyatt leading Buddy Dozier by 28 points, and sitting 46 points ahead of Mitch Sarvis.

Only six points separates All-American leader Tommy Hoggard from his closest competitor John Hicks. Robert Dozier is another 38 points down.

And Buddy Malish stands 12 points in front of Milton Herring in the Mini-Stocks. Robert White is third just 20 points behind.

This week it's Summertime USA at Langley as the Late Models run 50 laps, the Grand Stocks run 30 and the All-Americans and Mini-Stocks 20 each.

Late Model
1. Roger Sawyer	226
2. Phil Warren	206

Sawyer finishes second at Busch Grand National

In a field of 34 drivers including Bobby Allison, Bill Elliot, and Dale Earnhardt, Chesapeake's own Elton Sawyer showed his stuff at Indianapolis Race Park last week. Sawyer finished 2nd in the 200-lap Grand National event.

Sawyer started 26th in the field in Car #42, a Chevy 6 Celebrity sponsored by Bill Lewis Chevrolet and Cavalier RV. With average speeds of 104 mph it "wasn't long" before Sawyer found himself in a challenging position. On the 93th lap he pulled into the 8, 9, and 10 car pack. On the 180th lap Sawyer took first place after the lead car ran out of gas. He stayed in the lead until the back straight away in the final lap. Sawyer lost first place to Larry Pierson as a slower car lost Sawyer in his mirror and did not yield to the lower track. Pierson won the race by a 1/2 car length.

PARTS THAT LAST FINISH FIRST.

Robertson named vice president of new mortgage office in city

George Molloy, senior vice president of Bank South Mortgage, Inc. in Atlanta, Ga., recently announced the opening of their first full service mortgage branch in Virginia.

Located in Meadows Office Park on South Independence Boulevard in Virginia Beach, it will serve the Hampton Roads community with first and second mortgage loans.

Virginia Beach resident William David Robertson has been appointed vice president and branch manager. Robertson served as vice president of U.S. Credit Mortgage Corporation for the past six years.

His new duties include a strategic planning, daily operations, and supervision of a service-based marketing program to Hampton Roads homeowners and Realtors.

Robertson graduated from Granby High School and received his B.S. degree in Chemistry from Virginia Military Institute. He served in the United States Army from 1970-1975. As an infantry Captain in Vietnam, Robertson was a helicopter scout pilot in the 17th Air Cavalry. He presently serves as a Major in the Army Reserve.

In December, 1981, he earned an MBA from Old Dominion University in marketing and finance.

He is a founder and past president of the Virginia Mortgage Association. He has served on the Mortgage Finance Committee of the Tidewater Builders Association as well as the Mortgage Finance Committee of the Tidewater Board of Realtors. He is currently Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the Tidewater Mortgage Bankers Association, and a member of the Virginia Mortgage Bankers Association Legislative Committee.

Robertson has served in Richmond as a registered lobbyist, testifying on mortgage issues and participating in General Assembly joint study commissions.

He is married to Emily G. Robertson and has two children, David, 16, and Martha, 13.

Smooth sailing

Residents and visitors know sailing is just one of the many outdoor recreational activities available in Virginia Beach.

Virginia Beach offers a variety of activities

The tourist division of the Department of Economic Development released the following information concerning the summertime activities in Virginia Beach.

Summer comes a bit early to Virginia Beach, as does the summer beach vacation season. In fact, it starts here in the spring, when the warm weather arrives, and extends into fall, when the climate turns slightly cooler.

This popular oceanside resort city has numerous attributes that have made it a favorite vacation spot.

First of all, of course, are the miles upon miles of clean sandy beaches along the sparkling surf of the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay.

But besides this essential ingredient, Virginia Beach offers plenty of diverse attractions, as well as excellent facilities and opportunities for outdoor activities.

There are many who swear by mid-summer as the ultimate time to get away to the beach. Others who prefer vacationing before the height of the season include those not bound by school schedules: retired people, singles and couples without children, or families with pre-school children. Any group, though, will enjoy its fill of fun here.

Virginia Beach does its best to make visitors feel welcome.

To start things off right, a uniformed Courtesy Patrol is on hand in the oceanfront resort area, ready to aid tourists.

Experienced lifeguards are on duty throughout the summer in various portions of the beach.

The city also regularly provides free entertainment for all ages.

Weekly events start in May, on the main stage in the Norwegian Lady Park at 25th Street and Oceanfront.

In mid-June, free daily entertainment begins at that site, as well as at several other parks along the beach. In addition, strolling entertainers travel up and down the seaside boardwalk on weekends, and weekly fireworks are planned.

For families with kids, the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department sponsors "Arts In The Parks" at three city parks every Saturday evening from May 23 through the end of summer.

Performing artists — magicians, actors, puppeteers — delight in enchanting their young audiences.

The Wappadoodle Puppet Show also takes place monthly at the Kempsville Playhouse and the Bow Creek Recreation Center.

Visitors spend a lot of time on the beach and in the ocean here, but that's not the only way to enjoy the water. Many hotels and feature pools, indoor and outdoor.

The more adventurous will want to try the exciting variety of slides at Wild Water Rapids. This water amusement park also contains a huge wave pool and special areas for youngsters.

The Miss Virginia Beach, for example, leaves Rudee Inlet afternoons and evenings, May through September.

The spectacular new Virginia Marine Science Museum, which opened in 1986, offers a wealth of information about the area's marine environment. Immense aquariums, simulated underwater trips, and nearly 100 hands-on exhibits geared to all age groups make this museum entertaining as well as educational.

Sports-minded folk are in luck here too.

Tennis buffs have their choice of any of the more than 160 courts in the city, most of which are lighted for night play.

Golfers can pick from seven first-rate courses, all within a short drive from the resort area.

Virginia Beach welcomes bicycle riders with 45 miles of bike trails, including the four-mile-long oceanfront boardwalk, where bike rental stands are located.

Seashore State Park also has bike trails, as well as 27 miles of picturesque nature trails perfect for hiking.

There are many sites to see throughout the city by car too.

Points of interest, such as beautifully preserved colonial homes, strategic military bases, the Christian Broadcasting Network Center, and the First Landing Cross at Cape Henry, are easily found by following signs pointing out 20 attractions on the Virginia Beach Self-Guided Motor Tour.

Day trips by car to Williamsburg — only an hour away — are also popular. In addition to restored Colonial Williamsburg and Busch Gardens, The Old Country theme park, historical sites in the Williamsburg area include Jamestown and Yorktown.

Back on the beach, the city has a bustling night life. Vacations can take in films, dramatic presentations and concerts, or go dancing.

Fine dining abounds here too, with fresh seafood, not surprisingly, served as the specialty at many excellent restaurants.

And adults traveling with children can have the nights to themselves. Many hotels offer babysitting services, and there are a number of drop-in childcare centers here that are open until midnight and later.

So while the beaches in Virginia Beach are certainly praiseworthy and the major draw for beach vacation lovers, those who have been here before have discovered that this resort city has many extra added attractions.

That's why so many keep coming back year after year. First-time visitors just might be amazed at how much there is to see and do here.

For information on accommodations and attractions in Virginia Beach, call the Virginia Beach Visitors Bureau.

Dial 1-800-446-8038 toll-free for facts and packets of free full-color brochures. Calls are answered from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., seven days a week.

Or write the Visitors Bureau at P.O. Box 200, Virginia Beach, Va. 23458.

Founder of Holiday Inn chain to speak at CBN University

William Walton, a founder of the Holiday Inn chain, and one of the nation's biggest promoters of tourism, will be speaking to residents and business people at the CBN University Library Auditorium on Friday, June 26, 8 to 9 a.m.

Walton will discuss principles from his latest book, "The New Bottom Line" and give insights concerning how to build morale, open lines of communication, handle authority and infuse integrity into the business system. He will also be a guest on "The 700 Club," CBN's flagship television program that day.

Walton, along with two other men, founded Holiday Inns of America Corp. in 1955. He spearheaded the company's phenomenal growth into an international system of more than 2,000 inns employing over 150,000 people. Walton was actively involved with the corporation until 1980. He is currently president and chairman of the board of Walton Hotel Corp.

Recognized as one of the country's leading promoters of tourism, Walton, along with Senator Daniel Inouye, organized the Advisory Council to the Commerce Committee of the U.S. Senate. He served as the committee's chairman for six years.

In 1974, former President Gerald Ford sent Walton to Russia to negotiate the "Travel Trade Treaty." He was also responsible for a bill that created the post of undersecretary of commerce for travel and tourism.

The lecture is free and open to the public but reservations are required because of limited seating. They can be made by calling 424-7777, ext. 2450. CBN University is located off Indian River Road and Centerville Turnpike.

State marketing manager named Forward Hampton Roads president

Gregory H. Wingfield, a marketing manager with the Virginia Department of Economic Development, has been named president of Forward Hampton Roads, the economic development arm of the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce.

Wingfield will assume his new post July 1, according to Harold H. Hall, vice chairman of Norfolk Southern Corporation and chairman of the board of FHR.

In his position with the state's economic development office, Wingfield has promoted the advantages of Virginia as a business location to companies in the New York City — New Jersey area. It was in that capacity that he began working closely with FHR and was part of the team effort that resulted in the Lillian Vernon Corporation's decision to locate in Virginia Beach.

"Gregory Wingfield's professionalism and level of credibility have impressed all of us who have had the good fortune of meeting him and working with him," said William H. Chapman III, chairman of the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce board and head of the search committee that recommended hiring Wingfield.

Wingfield has held several positions with the Virginia Department of Housing and Community Development including senior planner, program manager, and associate director.

He has been a planner with the Virginia Division of Intergovernmental Affairs, the Virginia Energy office, and the Richmond Regional Planning District Commission.

He holds a bachelor of science degree in urban studies and a master's degree in urban and regional planning from Virginia Commonwealth University.

Wingfield succeeds Hugh D. Keogh who left FHR last month to head the state's department of economic development.

FHR is a non-profit, private-sector funded organization created in 1984 by HRCC to aggressively promote economic prosperity in the south Hampton Roads cities by bringing in new industries, port business, and tourists.

Capps attends national NSPA conference

Thurmond A. Capps of Virginia Beach recently attended the National Society of Public Accountants' 1987 Professional Marketing for Practicing Accountants' Seminar held at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Crystal City, Virginia. This seminar provided Capps with continuing education in marketing topics.

The NSPA seminar is held annually and provides an opportunity for practicing accountants from all over the United States to interact with qualified instructors and to exchange ideas with other accounting professionals.

Judge Robert R. Merhige, Jr., Benjamin R. Civiletti, Philip H. Corboy and Richard K. Willard will debate punitive damages and tort reform at a special program on June 20 at the Virginia State Bar Annual Meeting in Virginia Beach.

Sponsored by the Young Lawyers Conference, the program is entitled "Punitive Damages in Tort Reform."

In a distinguished 23-year career Judge Merhige of the U.S. District Court, Eastern District, has presided over thousands of tort cases including the recent Dalkon Shield claims. He will provide the perspective of the judiciary.

A former U.S. attorney general, Civiletti will present one view of the private practitioner. At a recent national symposium on civil justice, Civiletti advocated restrictions on punitive damages and strict requirements of proof of a defendant's wrongdoing.

Civiletti is the chairman-elect of the ABA Litigation Section and managing partner of the firm of Venable, Baetjer and Howard. Having held several high-ranking positions in the Department of Justice, Civiletti argued before the International Court of Justice for the American captives in Iran and was responsible for the department's open trial guidelines.

Most recently, Civiletti received national attention as the chair of the University of Maryland Task Force on Drug Abuse.

Corboy has written more than 40 articles on litigation and has been a lecturer at hundreds of programs across the country including the ABA, Association of Trial Lawyers of America, National Institute for Trial Advocacy and Harvard Law School.

He is a partner of the Chicago law firm of Corboy & Demetrio and past chairman of the ABA Litigation Section. He will offer another viewpoint of the private practitioner.

Willard is the assistant attorney general in charge of the Civil Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. He is responsible for the Reagan Administration's program on tort reform and he will represent the government's point of view in the discussion.

The program will take place at 9:30 Saturday morning, at the Cavalier Oceanfront Hotel.

Virginia Beach to host VSB's 49th annual meeting, June 18-21

Approximately 1,000 lawyers and judges from across the state are expected to attend the 49th Annual Meeting of the Virginia State Bar (VSB), June 18-21, in Virginia Beach.

Active members of the bar will vote during the meeting for a VSB president-elect for the upcoming bar year. J. Jay Corson, IV of Fairfax and Colin J. S. Thomas, Jr. of Staunton have both filed as candidates for this position. It is anticipated that the winning candidate will be announced at the conclusion of the annual meeting.

U.S. Supreme Court Justice Lewis F. Powell, Jr. will present a special award during the annual luncheon on Saturday, June 20, in the Cavalier Beach Club of the Cavalier Oceanfront Hotel.

Richmond Attorneys Oliver W. Hill and Samuel W. Tucker will be honored, on behalf of the Virginia Commission on Women and Minorities in the Legal System, for their lifelong service to the profession and public.

A. E. Dick Howard, a White Burkett Miller professor of law and public affairs at the University of Virginia, is the annual luncheon's featured speaker. Professor Howard serves as chairman of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution and plans to focus his remarks on Virginia's contributions to the Constitution.

In addition, the VSB General Practice Section will honor a general practitioner with the First Annual Tradition of Excellence Award during the general session on Saturday morning, June 20. The award was initiated this year to honor a general practitioner who has devoted significant amounts of time, effort, or funds to activities which assist the community and enhance the standing of lawyers.

Local bar associations will be honored in the Second Annual Awards of Merit Competition conducted by the Conference of Local Bar Associations. The award recognizes outstanding projects produced by local bars for the public or profession and will also be presented during the general session.

Sixteen VSB sections will present professional development workshops on Friday, June 19, highlighting particular concerns in their area of law. The workshops will qualify for Mandatory Continuing Legal Education credit and will feature the following topics:

Administrative Law/Business Law — "A Lawyer's Guide to the State Corporation Commission"; Antitrust Law —

— "Offensive and Defensive Use of Antitrust and Related Business Tort Claims"; Construction Law — "The Design/Build Construction Project"; Criminal Law — "The Use of Trial Consultants in Criminal Trials"; Family Law/Litigation — "Resurrecting Civility in Litigation"; General Practice — "Marketing Your Law Practice"; and Health Law — "Long-term Care and the General Practitioner."

Intellectual Property Law (PTC) — "The Licensing of Intellectual Property — Techniques, Situations and Tax Implications"; International Law — "Economic Development for Local Government Attorneys and Private Practitioners"; Real Property — "Current Trends in Commercial Real Estate Financing"; Senior Lawyers — "Legal, Environmental and Other Issues in the Perspective of Aging"; and Taxation/Trusts &

Estates — "TRA '86 Tax and Estate Planning Considerations in Choosing the Business Entity — A Checklist Approach."

In conjunction with the Annual Meeting, the Committee on Continuing Legal Education of the Virginia Law Foundation will sponsor its 13th Annual Recent Developments in the Law Seminar on Thursday, June 18, at the Cavalier Beach Club. The registration fee for this all-day program is not included in the State Bar Annual Meeting registration fee. Separate registration with the CLE office is required. For more information call (804) 924-3416.

Twelve law schools will hold alumni breakfasts at 8 a.m. on Saturday, June 20, and for all young lawyers (age 36 and under), a reception, general membership meeting and lunch of the Young Lawyers Conference will be held beginning at 12:30 p.m. on Friday, June 19.

All members of the State Bar are invited to the President's Reception in the Sir Walter Raleigh Lounge of the Restored Cavalier Hotel, 6:30-7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 18, and a coffee reception for all women attorneys is planned for 8:30-10:30 a.m. on Friday, June 19, in the Surf Room of the Cavalier Beach Club.

The Annual Meeting will utilize the following Virginia Beach hotels: Cavalier Hotels (804/425-8555), Holiday Inn on the Ocean (804/428-1711), Howard Johnson's Oceanfront (804/428-7220), Ramada Ocean-side Tower (804/428-7025), and Sheraton Beach Inn (804/425-9000).

Three celebrity guest artists in Shakespeare-By-The-Sea Fest

For the first time in the ten year history of the Shakespeare-By-The-Sea Festival, celebrity guest artists will play leading roles in each of the three productions that will be performed this season.

Rita Moreno, the only female performer to have won all four of the most prestigious show business awards — the Oscar, the Emmy, the Grammy and the Tony — will be seen as the tempetuous Katherine in "The Taming of the Shrew."

As an added bonus, Moreno is bringing her talented daughter, Fernanda, a drama major at Tufts University, to be a member of the repertory company and play the role of Bianca in "The Taming of the Shrew."

"It is a perfect way for us to spend some time together and be in beautiful Virginia Beach,"

Cameras in the courtroom

Beach officials say 2-year experiment may be insightful, but that some "glitches" still exist.

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

Though the pictures may not be dramatic as "Perry Mason" reruns, some officials say bringing photographers and television cameras into the courthouses of Virginia Beach, could cause unnecessary intrusions onto the delicate machinations of the legal process.

One of the concerns of Chief

Circuit Judge Kenneth N. Whitehurst is whether cameras in the courtroom would impede the "orderly procession" of the trial. But, he said, after being contacted by the State Supreme Court officials about the experiment, he got a pretty unanimous response from the six other circuit court judges to allow Virginia Beach to take part.

While the experiment was recently approved by the General Assembly, Virginia Beach being Lottery, not local races, may attract 50,000 voters in Nov.

By James D. Barr
Staff Writer

While the individual General Assembly and senate races might not stir up the Virginia Beach voters, the state-wide lottery referendum may draw more Beach residents to the voting booths.

This November, five of the eight local elections to be considered by local residents are going uncontested.

Of the five General Assembly seats representing Virginia Beach, only voters in the city's southeastern section, the 8th district, will see two names on the ballot. In that race, Republican Darrel Hughes is challenging Democratic incumbent Glenn R. Croshaw.

"The lottery might up (the number of voters) another 10,000. We may get over 50,000." — Dr. Marlene J. Hager, general registrar for Virginia Beach.

In the 82nd, 83rd, 84th and 85th districts, incumbents Republican H. R. "Bob" Purkey, Democrat J. W. "Billy" O'Brien, Jr., Democrat Glenn B. McClellan and Republican Robert Tata, respectively, are running unopposed. In one other elected office, Republican J. Curtis Fruitt has no opposition for his

Still considered a "heck of a bargain"

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

In four years the water bill of the average water customer in Virginia Beach will be approximately 50 percent greater than it is now if Council adopts recommendations of consultants.

Even so, the customers will be getting a "heck of a bargain," said William H. Richardson, engineer with Alwold, Burdick & Howson, consultants.

Consultants at a workshop Monday afternoon recommended annual rate increases during the next four years based on the cost of service analysis and the impact of financing the Lake Gaston Project. The present rate is $1.62 per 1000-gallon usage. The recommended increases are to $1.81 in 1987-88; to $2 in 1988-89; $2.30 in 1989-90 and $2.74 in 1990-91.

Of the total four-year increase of $1.12, 78 cents will be needed for the Lake Gaston project.

The bi-monthly bill of the average user, based on a 12,000-gallon consumption, is now $26.34. The increase during the four years would bring the bill to $28.42 in 1987-88; $30.70 in 1988-89; $34.30 in 1989-90 and

New training center is tribute to police

By Beatrice Kitchen
Media Services Coordinator
Virginia Beach Public Information

Once you swing your car through the bright orange gates, it takes less than a minute before you know that you're in the right place.

Rolling up to the parking area, you might feel a slight lump in your throat as you stop your car beside the blue and white metal sign. Though replanted, it stands firmly in the ground, offering its silent tribute.

This Police Training Range Was Dedicated March 11, 1983 in Memory of Daniel T. Maloney Killed in line of duty December 27, 1981

On Wednesday morning, May 20, blue uniform stood silent, side by side with dignitaries, city employees, a scattering of media and private citizens to once again pay tribute to Maloney.

But this site is much more than a memorial. It is a reflection of the kind of person a police officer is.

The previous training center had been located closer to the Municipal Center but due to

"Running through Hogan's Alley, as if it were a real life-threatening situation, the officer only has a couple of seconds per target to assess the situation, decide whether or not to shoot, and follow through with his decision." — Master Police Officer Forrest P. Capps, in charge of the city's police training range.

The city relocated the training site to the "edge of the map" and Maloney's sign went with the move. And in the same spirit of dedication with which he served his profession, a healthy crew of police officers united to make the new one the best they could.

Heading the team of enthusiastic self-assigned carpenters was Master Police Officer Forrest P. Capps, a 17-year Virginia Beach Police Department veteran. Capps has run the gamut of law enforcement from patrol officer to detective to personnel and training officer, and finally pouring concrete, sawing, drilling, hammering, and raising frames.

Officers will have those diligent colleagues to thank for years to come — for providing a quality site for quality training. They are: Sgt. Alan Lane, MPO Bernice Ruby, MPO Karl Wesseler and MPO Rick Spredler. (Perhaps the next time they get recertified, we should add a certificate for Master Carpentry!)

As a major cooperative effort, the Sheriff's Department was also involved from day one. Captain Chuck Proffer was on site almost constantly over the past few months, bringing with him soon-to-be-released prisoners from the Correctional Center to assist with landscaping and construction.

This offered a much needed service to the Training Center and initiated a rehabilitative process to the prisoners.

Classes offered at the range are in firearms, defensive tactics and physical fitness, side handle baton, day and night firing.

Voter responsibility

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their country. In four months, this time-worn phrase should be changed to "now is the time for all good men to vote for their representatives."

Because five of the eight Virginia Beach races to be voted on this fall are uncontested, there might be a tendency for voters to think it a waste of time to vote. Over half of the political contests aren't really contests at all so what will an individual's vote count?

While no one can deny that the privilege of voting is an option, it is far better to stress it as a responsibility. The strength of the American political process is the involvement of individual citizens in the deciding who their civil representatives are.

To be the most effective, Beach residents must start now. It is hoped that Virginia Beach voters are watching the issues so they can be informed voters in November. Who is running? What office? What are the issues? Every effort by the voter to become more informed is in the best interest of the community.

What are the issues? Every effort by the voter to become informed is in the best interest of the community.

While the decisions made in Washington, D.C., Richmond and the city council chambers are often more emphasized, the more fundamental decision in the American political process is made when each citizen exercises his or her right to vote. Those officials are chosen to make the other decisions.

The greatest two enemies of political freedom are ignorance and apathy. The former results in irresponsible voting, the latter in not voting at all. Virginia Beach residents must rise above both of these - starting now - to make sure the election this fall produces true representatives of our community. — J.D.B.

Go slow with TGIF

Virginia Beach has been and is the site of many good events. But in the case of a TGIF — "Thank Goodness It's Friday" afternoon party — the city should take a hard look at similar events in our neighboring cities to see what is in the best interest of everyone involved.

As city council takes into consideration the pros and cons of assisting this type of event, both Norfolk and Portsmouth are reevaluating some of their own affairs, Festeville's TGIF and Portsmouth's Midweek Madness. Questions about monitoring, crowd control, traffic congestion, neighborhood concerns and noise levels must be given careful considerations before anything further is done in this city.

The Department of Parks and Recreation had problems dealing with large gatherings watching movies at Mount Trashmore even when alcohol wasn't served. Since that project was aborted nine years ago, the city has grown. Surely, another event of such a nature will not be any easier to control.

As it stands, one of the possible co-sponsors of the proposed Virginia Beach event is the Virginia Beach Arts and Humanities Commission. Councilwoman Reba McClanahan questioned the appropriateness of having a city-related board being involved in an alcohol-related event. That is an important consideration. Should council, through one of its boards, sanction such activities through its approval?

No one wants to restrict the freedom to gather. Private organizations and groups should be free to organize such events when and where they want — as long as they do not infringe on the rights of others in the community in doing so. It is of the utmost importance the city council draw up strict guidelines to help avoid potential problems. — J.D.B.

Flying on my bicycle

When I was 16-years-old I had my first airplane ride. But at the age of seven, I experienced a short, but dramatic, unplanned flight on my bicycle.

The setting: a new construction site in a field beside our home.

The actors: Me, a lanky kid with a crew-cut, and my friend Johnny, one-year-older who always wore thick glasses.

Props: Our trusty, blue, two-wheeler bikes with fat tires and dented fenders. As far as we were concerned, they were the two fastest man-powered machines on the face of the earth.

Johnny and I found ourselves on the dirt road leading to the construction site and decided it was a pretty good place to practice our skidding technique. With the soft dirt and a good straightaway, it offered an ideal location for getting up steam, slamming on the o' foot brakes and then measuring the length of the skid.

With each skid the challenge grew to out-skid each other. Hell's Angels we weren't but we thought we were pretty tough.

Well, as our skids got longer it was necessary to build up greater and greater speeds.

With all the bravado a seven-year-old can muster, I told my friend I would attempt the ultimate skid. To do so, I would need his help. Little did I know that I was becoming a perfect example of that well-known saying, "Pride goeth before a fall."

With every fiber in my body I tried to stop my bike. I no longer was hoping to pull off the perfect skid. I was just hoping I would live to see my eighth birthday.

I told Johnny to ride down to the very end of the dirt road to see if the condition of the work site was suitable for skidding. By gesturing to me with prearranged arm signals I would know if all systems were go.

I'm not sure whose fault it was, but between the time we talked to the time he reached the other end of the dirt road, we had our signals confused. He wanted to tell me that I'd better be careful and I interpreted it as "Let'er rip."

With the adrenaline flowing, I put everything I had into making my bicycle a rocket on wheels. Faster and faster and faster. I went till I could hear the air whistling in my ears.

It was then that I saw the error of my ways.

In my excitement to pull off the greatest skid ever, I failed to see, until too late, that I was fast approaching a large hole for the foundation of the building.

With every fiber in my body I tried to stop my bike. I no longer was hoping to pull off the perfect skid. I was just hoping I would live to see my eighth birthday.

Though the incident took place over 21 years ago, I remember it as if it happened yesterday. For those brief few seconds I lived the life of stuntman Evel Knievel.

As the front wheel of my bike passed over the ledge I calculated the hole to be six or eight feet deep. It would have been nice if I could have kept my bike level, but in this case I was soon performing an aerial somersault.

Frozen in my bicycle seat, a death clutch on the handlebars, I watched the world rotate around me. First I was staring straight ahead at the ground, then looking upside-down at what was once behind me, and

Good luck in preserving/recording history, landmarks

Editor:

I agree with Mrs. Barbara Henley that steps should be taken to preserve the history of Virginia Beach and its landmarks. The points brought out in the article in The Virginia Beach Sun article of June 17, 1987, are very pertinent.

You may like to know that Stephen Mansfield of the Prince-ce Anne Historical Society (also history professor at Virginia Wesleyan College) is working on a pictorial history of the city for the series of such publications by Downing Publications. It will be published in about a year.

A comprehensive written history is also needed. The Virginia Beach Library prepared a paperback history of the city a few years ago.

Professor Mansfield may be a suitable person to write a comprehensive city history since he is a local authority already working on the matter.

MR/DD program needs volunteers

The Mental Retardation/Developmental Disabilities Program needs volunteers in the following capacities:

* Clerical assistance is needed in the Pemroke Six office suite. Knowledge of filing, light typing, and ability to answer the phone is necessary. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, but volunteers set own days and times, 10 to 20 hours per week.

* A male volunteer is needed to do recreation activities evening and weekend with a male adult who has developmental disabilities. One or two hours per week and a six-month commitment is necessary.

* Case Management Program needs volunteers as client advocate. Those with sincere interest in helping developmentally disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

* Volunteer will take client out for recreation, leisure activities.

A valid driver's license and liability insurance required.

* Volunteers are still needed to assist mentally retarded adults on trips to Busch Gardens this summer. Two volunteers are needed for each trip and trips are planned every week. Mature volunteers who are willing to ride the rides are encouraged to apply.

* Case Management Program needs volunteers as client advocate. Those with sincere interest in helping developmentally disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Admission rates are $3.25 for adults; $2.50 for children, 4 to 12, and $2.00 for senior citizens.

Children, three-and under, are free when accompanied by parents.

Bird exhibit

A new exhibit of contemporary bird carvings from private and museum collections opened recently at the Virginia Marine Science Museum.

The carvings range from a miniature great blue heron by E. Lynn Forehand of Chesapeake to a life-size snow goose by Oliver Lawrence of Crisfield, MD.

Other work includes a pair of screech owls by Jules A. Bouillet of Vincennes, Ind., and a peregrine falcon with a sparrow, also by Forehand.

The art will be on display throughout the summer at the Museum's Birds of Marsh and Shore exhibit.

Two elementary school counselors respond to those who fear program

Let's Talk

By Rob Jones
President
Virginia Beach
Education Assoc.

Last month I wrote to encourage each of you to attend a public hearing to receive input on whether or not the state should fund a program which would place a counselor in every elementary school in the state.

The hearing was conducted by members of the State Department of Education, listened patiently to well over 100 citizens, parents, and professionals express their opinion on the subject.

While I could understand, and in most cases appreciate, the positions of those who spoke against the state's proposal on elementary counselors, I was dismayed at the number of distortions and errors in fact that seemed to permeate the content of their arguments.

I was talking with the only two elementary counselors that were active this past year in Virginia Beach, and I find that:

•God is not pre-empted as the ultimate counselor in their consultations with children. In fact, every effort is made to avoid discussions concerning religion or other basic values.

•What does take place is individual and small group counseling with students who are referred by their teachers or parents, or come in themselves to receive help for a myriad of needs.

Small group counseling does not take place unless the parents of the children involved are notified and approve each child's participation.

•Counselors do not force their personal values on the children they serve.

•As stated above, they do their utmost to stay out of these areas and to deal with peer interaction, school adjustment problems, and other issues common with elementary age children.

A parent, upon learning that his or her child has been referred for counseling, must approve the child's participation in small group counseling.

•Every child does not receive counseling service. A number of people at the hearing seemed concerned that a perfectly normal child would, for some reason, be taken in hand by a counselor and be damaged for life.

•Large group or full class "counseling" does not happen. Group "guidance" does take place, in which a counselor gives instruction in matters of general interest and curriculum-based content.

Children are not randomly selected for counseling. Neither of the counselors interviewed have time for that.

•Parents are not left in the dark about the counseling needs of their children.

•Both counselors conduct strong "parenting" programs in which parents are invited to come each week for a series of weeks to learn and share their roles as parents.

Groups of six to ten parents talk about their parenting skills and learn new skills in discussion facilitated by the counselor.

Both counselors make ready use of community agencies to assist them in their roles, including the city's Comprehensive Mental Health Service and the Navy Family Services Agency.

Traditionally, to be referred to the principal or assistant principal was a negative stigma and sign of failure. How many times do students refer themselves to an administrator?

Increasingly, students are becoming comfortable enough in two of our schools to refer themselves to a counselor. Generally, one or two visits is all it takes.

Occasionally, a visit a week for a few weeks is necessary. Beyond that, a formal referral to an appropriate agency, in consultation with the parents, may be necessary.

Neither of these counselors see themselves as practicing psychotherapy. They are not trained for it and have no desire to get into those areas as elementary counselors.

They have the time in a one-on-one, or a small group setting to do what the classroom teacher simply doesn't have the time or training to do.

They see themselves as the first line of remedy to normal problems of growing up, and as friends and good listeners for our children.

What little boy or girl couldn't use a good listener and a friend now and then?

Pumpers relocate during large fires

Fire Safety

By Martin Grube
Master Fire Fighter

There are 16 fire stations in Virginia Beach. Every station has at least one pumper in it.

Five stations have a ladder truck housed there and three stations have two pumpers housed inside.

Whenever there is a large fire requiring many pumpers, the Virginia Beach Fire Department moves or relocates several of these pumpers to fill the void created at the fire stations. The way it works is like this:

Say a building caught on fire in College Park; fire units from the College Park Fire Station (#10) and the Kempsville Fire Station (#9) would respond.

If the fire was large enough and the fire units were going to stay for a long period of time, a pumper from one of the stations with two pumpers would be relocated to the empty station.

The fire stations with two pumpers are the Beach Borough, College Park and the Plaza fire station.

One of the largest fires in Virginia Beach occurred during May of this year and a total of 10 pumpers and two ladder trucks were required to control the blaze.

This fire required 60 percent of our city's fire apparatus. A phone call was made to the Norfolk and Chesapeake fire departments, and fire units from those two cities relocated to several Virginia Beach fire stations during the course of this major fire.

Virginia Beach fire units have relocated to Chesapeake Fire Stations many times in the past.

The pumpers in Virginia Beach are manned by paid professional firefighters. Three firefighters on the pumpers and three firefighters on the ladder trucks is the average.

So when ever there is a major fire in Virginia Beach, you can rest assured that the firefighters are doing their best to keep the entire city protected.

Drop by your nearest fire station and visit with your firefighters. Think fire safety.

July 2 at Francis Land House

Rita Moreno, Lillian Katz to highlight citizenship event for 100 immigrants

Over 100 immigrants will converge on the lawn of the Francis Land House at 3131 Virginia Beach Blvd. to take the oath of citizenship at a Naturalization Court on Thursday, July 2, at 10:30 a.m. United States Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr. will preside at the ceremony.

This is the only Naturalization Court that will take place in Virginia Beach this year. Sponsored by the Virginia Beach Constitution's Celebration Commission and the Francis Land Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution, the event is a major focus of the city's commemoration of the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution.

Following a band concert and the naturalization proceedings,

Rita Moreno, star of stage, screen and television, will lead the assembly in singing "America the Beautiful."

The only female performer to have earned all four of the highly coveted entertainment awards — the Oscar, the Emmy, the Grammy and the Tony — Moreno is in Virginia Beach to appear in the 1987 Shakespeare-By-The Sea Festival at the Virginia Beach Pavilion.

Guest speaker Lillian M. Katz, president of the Lillian Vernon Corporation, will share her experiences as a naturalized citizen in an address entitled "The American Dream." Born in Leipzig, Germany, Katz and her family fled to the United States in 1937 to escape the Nazis.

In 1951, she founded a mail order company with only $2,000 and a supply of purses and belts. Under her leadership, the catalog company has since grown into a leader in the mail order industry, projecting annual sales of $150 million in 1987. The decision to relocate the company's distribution center to Virginia Beach was announced this spring.

This celebration of citizenship also marks the first anniversary of the establishment of the Francis Land House as a historic site. Believed to have been built in 1732, the year ground was broken for Independence Hall in Philadelphia and the year of George Washington's birth, the house was constructed by Capt. Francis Land III.

Aburgess representing Princess Anne county in the Colonial Capitol in Williamsburg, Land helped shape the early history of our democratic form of government.

The date chosen for the naturalization ceremony is significant to the historical celebration of the Bicentennial of the Constitution, because it was on July 2, 1776, that Congress adopted the resolution of independence that eventually became the Declaration of Independence.

Following the naturalization ceremony, a site on the grounds of the Francis Land House will be dedicated for a historic tree grove.

As part of the national celebration of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, the American Forestry Association has chosen Virginia Beach as one of 100 municipalities nationwide to receive seedlings from famous or historic trees that were living at the time the constitution was written.

Planted together in a public grove, the trees will act as a living legacy of the Constitution's Bicentennial.

The public is invited to renew the oath of allegiance to the United States and to welcome the new Americans by sharing this celebration of citizenship and the document that guarantees the rights and privileges of all Americans.

then I was looking at the clear blue sky.

If the hole was a little bit deeper I might have come around full circle. Then again I might have killed myself.

But at some point short of completing a 360-degree flip, my poor imitation of the Wright brothers came to an abrupt end. Bike still in hand I bounced along for a few feet, stopping in a cloud of dust more stunned than hurt.

At that point I think my friend Johnny was ready to call an ambulance. But when I finished counting all my fingers and toes, except for a few scratches and scrapes, I was miraculously still in one piece. In all the years since, I can't remember a biking experience to match that one. I hope it stays that way.

The Second Front

The four-year increase for the commercial user would range from $36.99 to $63.96 percent and for institutional customers from 59.89 percent to 59.18 percent, based on the meter size.

Richardson said that the 5/8 inch meter size, used by residential customers, accounts for 95 percent of the system.

Consultants recommended no increase in the sewer rates during the same period. However they proposed changes in other charges of the Public Utilities Department.

They recommended an increase in the charge, under the Wheeling Contract, for transferring water from Norfolk through the Virginia Beach distribution city for service to the Ocean Naval Air Station and other military installations. The present charge of five cents per 1000 gallons was found to be "significantly inadequate." A recommended increase to 37 cents would increase the revenue from $37,000 to $270,000 per year.

Consultants recommended the gradual increase in rates to soften the financial burden of present consumers. The city adjusted its rates in 1981 and in 1983 when the water rates were increased by 12.5 percent and the sewer charges by 35 percent.

The average bill figures include only water usage charges and do not include utility taxes or other service charges. Nor do they take into account the cost of the capital program which would include 35 new neighborhood projects in the Capital Program.

The increases are needed, according to consultants to protect the city's half billion dollar investment in the waste and sewer system. The original cost of the system, as of June 30, 1985, is estimated at $226 million and the projected investment in Lake Gaston in the next four years is $200 million.

Richardson said that the rate increase will maintain the integrity of the self supporting utilities system and that the burden should not be placed on others. By adjusting the rates now, he said, the city would not be mortgaging the future.

Richardson added that water and sewer are still the greatest bargain, that the increase would cost only one cent a day per person. He said, "You can't buy a Coca Cola for 20 cents a day!"

Also recommended are:

• A decrease in the minimum service availability charges based on the meter size (for 5/8 inch meters from $3.45 to $3.35).

• A voluntary system for providing funds for paying utility bills for the needy. Customers would be asked to add $1 to their utility bill voluntarily ($6 a year). The funds would be maintained in a separate account to pay water and sewer charges for the needy.

• Increases in water charges including the account initiation and reestablishment charge from $15 to $20; delinquency, from $10 to $20; meter testing from $25 to $60 for 3/8 to one inch meter, $35 to $80 for 1 1/4 to three-inch meter, and $50 to $80 for a four-inch meter; developer hydrant fee from $250 to $310, and a decrease in the water use charge for private fire protection from $34.95 to $28.55.

• Increases in sewer charges including sewer connection fee from $145 to $225; sewer cleanouts from $145 to $225, and increases in impact fees in all categories.

Richardson said that water costs are significant compared to other costs and would make a small impact on the customer. He said that Council could not wait until it was in a deficit situation to raise rates and when the costs would be greater.

If the city did not have the Lake Gaston project, it would have to have something else, which would probably be more expensive, he said.

By taking a step each year, the city would be anticipating the blow.

The city's pumping stations, he said, are "the best I've ever seen. You could eat off the floor."

He said the Utilities Department is operating efficiently.

Councilman John A. Baum noted that "water is going to be expensive for everybody. The best reservoirs (Norfolk's) have already been taken. In the West, (there has been) a water shortage all along. Here it has been taken for granted. Those days are gone forever."

Richardson said that the city did not increase the rates, it would end up in a deficit situation where it could not sell bonds.

Clarence Warnstaff, Public Utilities director, said that the figures do not include the potential purchase price of two private utilities companies.

Courtroom camera controversy

one of four localities selected, there are many provisions in the act to keep the courtroom from becoming an open studio.

Presiding judges have the authority at any time to prohibit the use of cameras in the courtroom. All cameras will be barred from the courtroom during cases involving adoptions, sexual offenses and trade secrets. To meet the needs of additional newsmen, coverage will be "pooled" with the information of any individual case being made available to all media at the same time.

"It's going to take some cooperation of the media," said Whitehurst. He said there will also be some adjustments made by the court to accommodate the new feature, but for the most part, the burden of the will be on the media to handle the details.

One of the more difficult aspects of the experiment is getting everything ironed out quickly. The experiment is supposed to begin July 1 and with attention being focused on the Michael and Karen Diehl case, which will begin July 6, many details remain unresolved.

With so little time before the cases begin, Whitehurst said he hopes to work things out with media representatives "as soon as possible" but he recognized "it's got some glitches in it."

Because the act provides for allowing each party in every case to object to media coverage, and how cameras in the courtroom may affect trials, Whitehurst said "it will depend on a case to case situation" as to how he will deal with the new experiment.

Once the two-years is completed, lawyers, witnesses and judges will be polled for their responses to camera presence as it relates to balancing out the constitutional right of a free trial and the freedom of the press to cover such events.

seat as clerk of Circuit Court.

While the Republicans did not appoint anyone to run against Senator Clarence A. Holland in the 7th District, independent R.S. LeSesne has thrown his hat in the ring.

The 8th senatorial district seems to be the most attractive as both a democrat and an independent have decided to run against Republican incumbent A. Joe Canada Jr., Democrat Moody E. Stallings and independent Louis M. Pace will be out shaking hands and seeking the attention of voters from now until election day.

Attracting the voter's attention in Virginia Beach can sometimes present a challenge in itself.

Dr. Marlene J. Hager, general registrar for the city, said the last election for house and senate positions in 1983 drew only one-third of the city's 120,000 registered voters.

Hager's records showed that 41,765 Beach residents went to the polls in 1983 and, she said, a similar number came out for the city council races in 1985.

"The lottery might up (the number of voters) another 10,000," said Hager. "We may get over 50,000."

Hager said voter registration

Michael Greer, whom the Washington Post cited as "a perfect example of what Cabaret can and should be," will play the dual roles of Oberon, King of the Fairies, and Theseus, Duke of Athens, in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

Greer is an accomplished night club comedian, writer and actor. He has appeared in the "The Rose" with Bette Midler, "Lonely Guy" with Steve Martin and on numerous television shows.

John Wesley Shipp comes to the Shakespeare By-The-Sea Festival to portray Mark Antony in "Julius Caesar." Police training center shows level of dedication uses lectures coupled with demonstrations and on-site hands-on experience in firing under incident-simulated conditions to prepare them for the "real world."

Hagan's Alley is a particularly interesting and strategic training segment. Named for the FBI agent who created a "decision village" while stationed in Quantico, it's a series of framed windows and doors with computer controlled pop-up cardboard characters. The exercise provides training in a "shoot/don't shoot" situation.

For an in-depth tour of the new facility, there couldn't have been a better guide than Officer Capers.

Highly enthusiastic about the new site, he carefully explained how important it is to combine training in officer safety with firing skill and decision making ability.

"Running through Hogan's Alley, as if it were a real life-threatening situation, the officer only has a couple of seconds per target to assess the situation, decide whether or not to shoot, and follow through with his decision," he said.

The range isn't just for Academy classes. Veteran officers must be recertified every six months, making full use of the center.

Capers videos the training exercises, reviewing procedures on a television monitor in a classroom setting so errors can be spotted and corrected. It's a difficult process, for student as well as instructor.

But Capps exemplifies the very essence of a police officer's search for excellence.

His own father was an officer for the city until his death due to illness in 1972. And although his father certainly influenced his life, it wasn't the familial tie that motivated the range officer's decision to join the department, but rather a news story.

"I had just finished an apprenticeship as a machinist, and read an article in the paper about how hard it was to become a police officer in Virginia Beach," he said. He grinned, remembering the challenge of the moment. "So I did."

As I drove away from the interview, a shadow of guilt followed me. I don't consciously give a great deal of thought to the police officer, per se. I'm afraid — like most of us — I assume the "men and women in blue" will be there when I call, when I'm in trouble.

But it takes special people of great dedication and commitment like MPO Forrest Capps, Lt. Drew and his crew — and all the others who care so much about their profession — to help us enjoy the quality of life we're used to.

Well, Daniel T. Maloney — the sign's firmly planted, the new site's rededicated, and the torch is passed.

Kempville Recreation Center sponsoring senior citizens trip to Franklin, Va.

The Virginia Beach Recreation Center/Kempville is sponsoring a senior citizens trip to Franklin, Va., for a day of country touring on Tuesday, July 7, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

After departing from the recreation center, the first stop will be at the Camps' trotting horse farm. You'll tour the stables, see the yearlings, and watch a trotting horse training demonstration.

Following lunch in Franklin, it's on to the "Pig Parlor," where you can witness how pigs are bred and raised.

Casual dress, appropriate for warm weather, is recommended. The armas at the "Pig Parlor" may be strong, so be prepared.

Sign up immediately as limited transportation is available. The deadline for registration is Friday, June 26. For more information and reservations, call 495-1892.

Mt. Trashmore to host free concert

A concert by the "Atlantic Express," a division of the Atlantic Fleet Band, will be hosted by Mount Trashmore Park on Saturday, June 27, at 6 p.m.

The concert is free and open to the public. For more information, call 495-1892.

Volunteers needed at Sugar Plum Bakery

Based on a business model and training center, handicapped persons learn bakery type skills to help them become contributing members of society.

Volunteers are needed a few hours each week at the Laskin Road Bakery. Several positions are open.

For more information, call Terrie Decker at 422-3913.

Senior citizens fishing trip set for June 26

Virginia Beach senior citizens are invited to take part in a half-day fishing trip on the Chesapeake Bay set for Friday, June 26, starting at 7:30 a.m.

The trip costs $12.50 including bait and tackle. For an additional fee, bloodworms will be available. Participants should bring their own containers to transport any fish caught.

Chip Hudson finally takes Langley Speedway pole

By Wayne Block
Langley Correspondent

You wouldn't say it was getting boring, but some people had been wondering whether anyone but Phil Warren or Roger Sawyer would ever again win a Late

The Mims, from Great Bridge, win in Suffolk

The racing team of Charlie and Melvin Sims of Great Bridge took second place honors last weekend in the heavy class at Suffolk Raceway.

With a 1973 Dodge Dart, the team ran an elapsed time of 13.69 seconds at 85 mph over the quarter-mile track.

Model Stock Car Race at Langley Speedway. Chip Hudson, of Chesapeake, took care of that Saturday night.

By winning the pole and then leading all 50 laps, Hudson became the first person other than Warren or Adkins to win a LMSC race at Langley since March 29, when Billy Adkins did the trick.

Hudson, driving a new car, ripped off the fastest qualifying lap of the year, 16.776 seconds, and then led the parade to victory.

and Charlie Doyle, of Norfolk, fifth.

Mitch Sarvis, of Norfolk, took control of the 30-lap Grand Stock feature early and held on for his third win of the year, but first since April 12. Tony Steele, of Williamsburg, was second, followed by Buddy Dozier, of Virginia Beach, third; Mike Sprinkel, of Virginia Beach, fourth and Buddy Hyatt, of Newport News, fifth.

In the All-American Division 20-lapper, Paul Lubno, of Hampton, fought his way from back in the pack to take the lead on the eighth lap to win his second feature of the year. John Hicks, of Hampton, was second with Tommy Hoggard, of Newport News, third; Mike Townsley, of Portsmouth, fourth and Jeff Apelwhite, of Chesapeake, fifth.

Buddy Malish, of Newport News, who had a three-race Mini-Stock winning streak rubbed out by Milton Herring, of Newport News, two weeks ago, got revenge on Herring Saturday. Malish edged Herring with Joe Ferree, of Parkside, Va., third; Frank Lovell, of Newport News, fourth, and John Howard, of Newport News, fifth.

The Virginia Beach Association of Educational Office Personnel (VBAEOP) has chosen its administrator and secretary of the year. The awards were presented at the association's annual Bosses Night banquet, held recently at the Pavilion Tower Hotel.

George McGovern, principal of Lynnhaven Junior High School, and Lee Peery, administrative secretary for the deputy superintendent, were chosen 1987 administrator and secretary of the year, respectively.

The association also installed its officers for the 1987-88 school year. They are Jeanne Callahan, president; Patti Giancola, president-elect; Debbie Cohen, recording secretary; Dottie Sykes, corresponding secretary; and Colleen Lowder, treasurer.

The VBAEOP awarded its annual scholarships, the Lennie Johnson and Anita LaBahn Memorial Scholarships, to high school seniors who are relatives of VBAEOP members. Each received $400.

This year's Lennie Johnson scholarship winner was Bryan Carroll Mizelle, son of VBAEOP member Bonnie Mizelle, principal of Thoroughgood Elementary.

Winner of the Anita LaBahn scholarship was Jonathan Edward Wohlford, son of VBAEOP member Pat Wohlford.

Linkhorn Park G.C. wins award

The Linkhorn Park Garden Club won first place in the Home And Neighborhood Development Sponsors (HANDS) project at the recent annual awards luncheon of the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach. Mrs. M. A. Zimmerman was chairman of the HANDS project for the club. The fourth annual bridge party and luncheon was held recently with Mrs. N. J. Ashman, chairman, and Mrs. H. L. Lam, co-chairman. Proceeds from this fund-raising event have been used for the beautification of the community and city.

Awards to club members were presented during this party. Mrs. N. J. Ashman won the exhibit

and Mrs. Winston Davis the horticulture award.

Another fund-raising event of the Linkhorn Park Garden Club is the annual "Bridge Marathon" which began in October and ended in May. The winners this year are Mrs. W. B. Meredith, first, and Mrs. M. B. O'Connor, second.

Maritime Museum seeks summer volunteers

The Virginia Beach Maritime Historical Museum is looking for summertime volunteers. Those who would be willing to help would be asked to give 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 hours a week or every other week.

Sara Jane Smith, volunteer coordinator, said that the only requirement is willingness. Each volunteer will be assigned to an experienced docent. The responsibilities include greeting visitors and providing assistance in the galleries or gift shop. Museum hours are Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Sundays, noon to 5 p.m.

The museum offers youth programs, school tours, open houses, civic and service presentations and many other special events.
